PNC set to give Arafat a free hand

ALGIERS, Feb. 19 (AP) — Despite resistance from a hard-line minority, Yasser Arafat remains certain to win the Palestinian endorsement he needs to pursue his quest for a Middle East peace settlement, associates of the commander said.

Essam Sartawi, whom Arafat assigned to make contact with "progressive" Israelis, told reporters the hard-liners face "certain and overwhelming defeat."

The Palestine National Council, the PLO's exile parliament, is expected to end its 16th session next week with the adoption of a political program envisaging a possible peace settlement with Israel for the first time but insisting on a fully independent Palestinian state "with Arab Jerusalem as its capital," council members said.

Such a state, the sources said, could join in a confederation with Jordan once its sovereignty is internationally recognized.

Arafat displayed his charismatic domination of the council in Friday's plenary session when he almost effortlessly swept aside hard-line objections to a 12-percent enlargement of the council.

The council ratified by a show of hands the Arafat-inspired nomination of 40 new council members, bringing the total from 360 to 400. All but a handful of the nominees were Arafat supporters, thus substantially strengthening his moderate majority.

Arafat's leading opponent, Ahmad Jibril, leader of the Libyan-backed Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command (PFLP-GC), tried to organize opposition to the appointments.

Jibril, who had asked to speak after the vote, failed to take the floor. Speeches by Jibril and other hard-liners, including George Habbash and Nayef Hawatmeh, have drawn vigorous applause but little active support from the council session thus far.

Sartawi said the hard-liners hope to impose an outright rejection of President Reagan's peace initiative, which Arafat said contains some "positive points."

Reagan proposed Palestinian "self-government" in association with Jordan, but ignored the PLO and its demand for total independence. Some moderates believed the Fez plan might be reconciled with certain parts of the Reagan plan, particularly with regard to future Palestinian links with Jordan.

Council Chairman Khaled Al Fahoum, himself regarded as a hard-liner, described the Reagan plan as unacceptable but told reporters "the Fez plan is as good as endorsed."

GCC aides debate oil crisis, M.E.

Maher Abbas
Riyadh Bureau

RIYADH, Feb. 19 — The foreign ministers of the Gulf Cooperation Council met here Saturday to discuss topics ranging from the Middle East situation to the present oil price crisis with its expected repercussions on their economies.

The GCC comprises the Kingdom, Kuwait, the UAE, Bahrain, Qatar and Oman. Bahrain's Foreign Minister Sheikh Muhammad bin Mubarak said the discussions would cover the latest Gulf and Arab developments and the outcome of contacts made toward a peaceful settlement in the region based on the Arab peace plan which was arrived at by the Arab summit conference in Fez, Morocco, last year.

Another topic, he said, would be the ways and means of preserving the unity of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries-OPEC, in view of the failure of the last meeting in Vienna to come up with a uniform policy governing prices and production quotas.

Sheikh Mubarak said the conference would also discuss the Iraqi-Iranian war. "We earnestly seek an end to this conflict," he said, "since its continuation is destructive both to our brethren in Iraq (Continued on back page)

Vows to retaliate U.S. violated airspace--Libya

PARIS, Feb. 19 (AFP) — Libya reported an air incident with U.S. fighters Wednesday as it came under fire for allegedly planning to attack its pro-Western neighbor, Sudan.

The Libyan news agency Jana monitored here, quoting a Libyan armed forces communique, said Saturday that Libyan fighters on Feb. 16 intercepted an "aerial target" and "forced it to flee" after it had "violated Libyan airspace" and moved to 80 kilometers from Benghazi.

Jana added that the U.S. aircraft carrier Nimitz had been anchored at the edge of Libyan territorial waters near the Gulf of Sirte, off Benghazi, since Feb. 13.

The communique charged that ships of the Sixth American Fleet on Thursday had approached Libyan territorial waters and had been under very close surveillance by Libyan naval forces since then.

The communique said the Libyan armed forces would "confront any aggression" and threatened to "put fire and blood" to the Gulf of Sirte.

The American broadcasting network NBC reported Friday that Sudanese President Gaafar Numeidi recently foiled a Libyan-inspired attempt to overthrow his 14-year old regime, which was confirmed by the official Sudanese news agency SUNA quoting an authoritative source in Khartoum.

NBC said the recent U.S. naval and air maneuvers in the Gulf of Sirte had forced Libyan leader Muammar Qaddafi to withdraw his backing for the conspirators.

In Khartoum, official sources said the authorities had arrested about 20 Sudanese for anti-government activities in the past three months.

The detainees reportedly confessed to having been indoctrinated by Col. Qaddafi's Green Book and received training into "subversive techniques" in camps organized by Libya and an unidentified neighboring country.

U.S. President Ronald Reagan told a press conference Wednesday that the United States was "well aware of Libyan attempts to destabilize its neighbors."

The reinforcement of U.S. military presence involved the Nimitz, four Airborne Warning and Control System (AWACS) planes were sent to Egypt — and which, according to Tripoli, jammed Libyan civil telecommunications Friday — and the presence of high-ranking U.S. officials in Sudan and Egypt.

Since Thursday, special U.S. envoy Gen. Vernon Walters has been in Khartoum, where he gave President Numeidi a message from President Reagan. Assistant Defense Secretary for International Security Affairs Francis West was expected in Cairo Saturday.

Washington confirmed that U.S. naval vessels were deployed off Libya and that U.S. surveillance planes were sent to Egypt, but refused to say if the moves aimed to warn

Libya against attacking Sudan.

Assistant U.S. Secretary of State for African Affairs Chester Crocker told the Sais Review that "more than half the countries in sub-Saharan Africa and some of the island states" were the targets of subversive Libyan activities.

Col. Qaddafi denied in an interview Friday with the U.S. CBS Television that Libya planned to attack Sudan or any other neighboring country.

But he accused the United States of "international terrorism" and said it had "no right to interfere with Arab affairs."

At the United Nations, Libyan Ambassador Ali Treiki said Libya would "fight" if U.S. naval vessels deployed off Libya entered its territorial waters.

Egypt denies seeking aid

CAIRO, Feb. 19 (AP) — Egypt denied Saturday it had asked the United States to take "any military moves" in response to a possible Libyan threat to Sudan and north-eastern Africa.

In a statement distributed by the official Middle East News Agency, "informed Egyptian sources" said Egypt "has never asked the United States to conduct any military moves in the Mediterranean or elsewhere."

The statement added that Egypt is "not an adherent to any country's strategy and has nothing to do with any moves by the United States or any other country" regarding military operations.

The Egyptian statement appeared to contradict reports from Washington that recent American military moves in the Mediterranean had been taken following consultations with the Cairo government.

These moves included the dispatching to Egypt of four U.S. AWACS surveillance planes and the shifting of the aircraft carrier Nimitz nearer the Libyan coast, Pentagon officials said.

U.S. to boost RDF in M.E.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (R) — The Pentagon has asked Congress for $229 million to build Rapid Deployment Force facilities and other installations in the Middle East and Southwest Asia, according to documents released.

It also asked Friday for $148 million to build sites for Cruise missiles to be deployed in five West European countries starting in December.

A total of $96.4 million was requested for army and air force facilities at the Egyptian military base at Ras Banas, near Cairo, and $39.6 million for facilities at several locations in Oman.

The Rapid Deployment Force, formed after the Afghan and Iranian crises to protect Western oil interest in South-West Asia, frequently holds training exercises in Egypt and Oman. A total of $92.7 million was requested to improve U.S. facilities, including the port, at the British-owned Indian Ocean island of Diego Garcia.

U.N. reports 'terror drive' in Lebanon

VIENNA, Feb. 19 (AP) — The head of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency is to discuss security issues at U.N. headquarters next week following an "increase in the campaign of terror against Palestinian refugees" in southern Lebanon, a U.N. official said Saturday.

Spokesman Terry Davidson said UNRWA Commissioner General Olof Rydbeck would be flying from headquarters here to New York next Wednesday to discuss "the security situation in Lebanon and other matters" with U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar. UNRWA runs schools, health centers and relief services for Palestinian refugees in the Middle East.

The report said leaflets found last week in Adloun, Sarfand and other villages in the Zaharani district south of Sidon called on Palestinians to "go to the camps, and whoever does not do so within 24 hours will bear full responsibility for his actions."

The leaflets, put in plastic bags and weighted with stones, were hung on the frontdoors of Palestinians. They were signed by a group calling itself "Lebanese Unity" and ended with the Arabic proverb: "He who forewarns is exonerated."

While the announcement did not say so, U.N. sources here said that local people attributed the "terror" to Phalangist militiamen.

In one incident, the UNRWA report said, armed men entered Ein El Hilweh camp at midday Thursday and took a refugee shopkeeper away for questioning. He was returned the same night.

'Oust Saddam' demand dropped

ALGIERS, Feb. 19 (R) — Algeria, which has tried to mediate in the Gulf war, said Saturday that Iran's demand for Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to step down was no longer a condition for peace negotiations with the Baghdad government.

Algerian Foreign Minister Ahmad Taleb Ibrahim told a press conference that Iran had dropped this pre-condition when its prime minister visited Algiers last year.

Arab diplomatic sources said Taleb Ibrahim's remarks were a new development but Iranian sources, informed of what he said, seemed unaware of such a change in the Iranian demands.

Iran had set three conditions to end the Gulf war: the fall of the Baathist government in Iraq, the withdrawal of Iraqi troops to the internationally-recognized borders between the two rival Gulf powers and Iraq's payment of $150 billion in war compensations.

Meanwhile, the U.N. Security Council will hold consultations Monday on the war between Iran and Iraq, U.N. officials said.

Cairo trial judge threatens to quit

CAIRO, Feb. 19 (AP) — The prosecution in the trial of 300 Islamic activists accused of plotting insurrection called its first witness Saturday after the presiding judge threatened to quit the case in disgust.

Saber Hassan, a taxi driver, testified he had provided automatic rifles to two of the defendants in September 1981 at their request. Hassan said one of the defendants, Nabil El-Maghrabi, told him the first bullet would be aimed "at the chest of (president) Anwar Sadat."

As the first of an expected 45 prosecution witnesses was called to the stand, the defendants, began shouting from their barred cages: "False testimony" and "God curse the unjust."

One of the defendants then yelled at Chief

Judge Abdul-Ghaffar Muhammad Ahmad: "Why are you in a hurry? You are putting on an act." After failing to determine who had made the insult, the judge recessed the proceedings in disgust and left for his chambers.

A group of defense lawyers conferred with him privately, and one of them, Ragai Attia, told reporters the judge had decided to quit the case and ask the state to appoint another tribunal. He apparently changed his mind at the urging of the defense lawyers and resumed the hearing a few minutes later.

During his testimony, Hassan said El-Maghrabi and another defendant had approached him at a mosque near Cairo in September 1981 and asked if he could provide them with submachine guns and automatic weapons.

To boost efficiency

Jeddah Chamber begins trade training program

By Suresh Shah
Arab News Staff

JEDDAH, Feb. 19 — The Jeddah Chamber of Commerce and Industry (JCCI) has embarked on a very ambitious training program this year with the aim of increasing efficiency and introducing scientific management into the fast growing economic activity in the Kingdom, according to the JCCI deputy secretary-general and manager of the training and research center, Hassan Ali Nassier.

Nassier told Arab News, the chamber, in cooperation with the Riyadh Chamber of Commerce and Saudi Chambers of Commerce, has planned 14 training programs for the current year covering various departments connected with trade and industry. These include finance, administration, computer, warehousing, purchases, imports, marketing and personnel.

Hassan Ali Nassier

The chamber has already completed seven of its training programs for the current year. The eighth program on warehousing management and administration started Saturday and will continue through Feb. 24.

Nassier said the warehousing program, which commenced Saturday covers subjects such as important functions of warehousing, modern methods in warehouse management, its definition, the methods of applying modern administration techniques, advantages of storehouses, importance of supervision and the difference between old and new management systems.

A discussion will also take place on the methods of building warehouses, their usefulness to commerce and industry, internal management, the ways of improving quality of warehouse management, the relationship between the administration of warehouse and other departments.

"All these issues will be discussed on a scientific basis considering the needs and conditions prevailing in the Kingdom in particular and in Arab countries in general," Nassier said.

The program was held in Abha on Feb. 12-17 and will be organized in Riyadh from Feb. 26 to March 3 for the benefit of managers and decision-makers in those areas, he added.

The forthcoming programs include the use of computers in administration on March 5-9; modern scientific methods on March 19-24; industrial administration on March 28-April 5; safety in commerce and industrial designing on April 2-6; import procedures and rules on April 16-20 and project designing in administration on May 8-18, Nassier said.

SR28m dam contract signed

RIYADH, Feb. 19 (SPA) — A SR28.9 million contract was signed here Saturday by Dr. Abdul Rahman Abdul Aziz Al-Sheikh, the minister of agriculture and water, for the construction of Al-Madda Dam in Asir. A national company will carry out the project within 12 months.

The project calls for the construction of a main dam and a support dam, both of an 11-meter height. The main one will have a length of 1,050 meters, while the smaller dam will be 280 meters long.

The contract also provides for the building of housing units for the guards, rooms for the power generators and a meteorological station. The two dams will store 4,257,000 cubic meters of water. There are 44 dams now built or under construction in Asir.

Research center preparing six studies on education

RIYADH, Feb. 19 (SPA) — The Educational Research Center is preparing six studies dealing with contemporary educational issues and tendencies, the center's director, Dr. Ahmad al-Agroush said.

The studies deal with spelling mistakes at primary schools, learning history at secondary schools and studying fine arts, Saudi Arabian heritage and other subjects, Agroush added. The studies also concentrate on determining the relationship between the standard of teaching among education college graduates and their grades, he said.

He said that since its establishment in 1976, the center had supervised 25 studies in different educational branches. Reluctance on taking teaching as a profession, priorities in making educational research in the Kingdom, field education, analytical evaluation of different skills and common mistakes in English language among secondary school students were among studies successfully undertaken by the center, Agroush added.

The center had also worked out eight analytical research papers on first term results of King Saud students for the academic year 77/78 covering the colleges of arts, education, agriculture, engineering and medicine, he said.

The center undertakes contacts with educational departments to exchange viewpoints on solving educational problems.

Local, international firms prepared for water exhibit

By a Staff Writer

JEDDAH, Feb. 19 — More than 50 Saudi Arabian companies, out of 200 firms will display various products and offer know-how at the first Water Technology Exhibition to be held at the Jeddah Expo Center from Feb. 23-March 3, according to Al-Harithy exhibition division spokesman Ibrahim Hammoud.

Many international companies from the United States, West Germany, Holland Britain and Denmark will display a wide range of products and services at the show, which will be accompanied by a three-day water technology seminar starting Feb. 28, according to London-based Fairs and Exhibitions Limited Executive Director David L. Monk.

The show, the first of its kind, is being jointly organized by the Jeddah-based Al-Harithy and London-based Fairs and Exhibitions Ltd. in the Kingdom, which is embarking on the most ambitious development plans.

Al-Harithy Exhibition Division Manager Said Haidar said the exhibition has been supported by the Ministry of Agriculture and Water, and the Saline Water Conversion Corporation.

The exhibition will feature a variety of pumps, treatment plants, sewage purification plants, chemical and physical treatments and other kinds of treatments, sewerage systems like land drainage, pipes, pipe materials, pipe fittings, clamps, gaskets, waste pipes, traps, fittings, protective coatings and materials, drain and pipe laying equipment, sludge conditioning, refuse engineering, city cleansing, measuring and control technology, irrigation equipment, drilling machines and tools, desalination units, water treatment equipment and pipes and pipelines.

The Jeddah Expo Center, the Kingdom's largest exhibition facility, spreads over an area of 50,000 square meters.

The importance of the event can be judged by the fact that the Kingdom and neighboring Arab states are embarking on major water projects and allocating substantial sums for the development and conservation of water resources.

In 1980, Saudi Arabia awarded contracts worth $2.27 billion for the development of water resources, which excludes $3.21 billion on related projects such as food and agriculture and $3.31 billion on electricity and power.

Much of the water consumed in Saudi Arabia is drawn from underground sources, notably in the Riyadh region where demand of up to 355,000 cubic meters per day in 1980 is expected to double by 1987. There is an annual requirement for over 10,000 vertical turbine pumps, 17 percent of which are replaced annually, and additional 150,000 smaller pumps, 50 percent of which are replaced annually.

Saudi Arabia produced over 212 million gallons of water through its desalination plants and allocated $13 billion for desalination projects in the Third Development Plan (1980-85). A joint study with the Bahrain government conducted in the Eastern Province revealed that ground water reserves are fast deteriorating, with the result that both countries are building new power and water stations including reverse osmosis plants. According to an estimate Saudi Arabia will be the world's largest producer of desalinated water by the mid-1980s.

Students prepare atlas for Kingdom

TAIF, Feb. 19 — Students at the intermediate college here have prepared an integrated topographical Atlas, Okaz reported. The new atlas comprises 68 maps showing all the natural and demographical features in Saudi Arabia.

The team worked under the supervision of Omar Al-Sadeq, professor of geography at the faculty. Sadeq said that the atlas was unique, because it was a topographical one and could serve as a reference in any study on the geography of the Kingdom.

At least two other atlas volumes are under preparation. One deals with the Arab world, while the other shows the distribution of governmental and private health services, pharmacies, schools, police stations and civil defense centers.

The faculty has the most advanced equipment and tools at its applied geography laboratory.

Gas turbines operation explained

By Alfred Taban

JEDDAH, Feb. 19 — A technical seminar to explain the operation of heavy-duty gas turbines and products manufactured by John Brown engineering was held here last week at the Hyatt Regency Hotel. Similar presentations had previously been held in Alkhobar, Riyadh and Abha.

The seminar was chaired by General Manager of Operations Peter Winnicott, who highlighted the use of turbines in Saudi Arabia and described available accessories. Product presentations were also made by Ian Broadley, director of technical development; Alan Young, projects director; and John Ronald, customer service manager.

Combined cycleplants, which are not yet in use in Saudi Arabia, were described by Broadley as very appropriate for power generation where full economic evaluation of fuel savings were important. He said that this system produces 50 percent more electric power which is produced by the recovery of lost heat. According to Broadley, the system allows for rapid installation with a negligible water requirement. He said these particular turbines are ideal for use in conjunction with reverse-osmosis desalination plants.

John Brown Engineering, which is represented in the Kingdom by the National Contracting Company of Alkhobar and the Ali Reza group of companies, has supplied gas turbine units to King Saud University in Riyadh, ARAMCO, and the Jeddah Oil Refinery.

DEVELOPING WATER TECHNOLOGY: An exhibition of new water products and technology, similar to those used in the Kingdom's development projects shown above, will be featured in Jeddah during the First Water Technology Exposition.

Health Ministry decree says hospitals can import medicine

RIYADH, Feb. 19 — Acting Health Minister Dr. Ghazi Alqasbi, who is also Saudi Arabia's minister of industry and electricity, has issued a decree regulating and facilitating the import of medicines by university hospitals and other governmental hospitals that do not belong to the Health Ministry, Al-Riyadh reported.

Dr. Alqasbi has agreed that all such medicines may be cleared by the Customs Department without prior approval from the Health Ministry. Such hospitals have also been allowed to import whatever registered medicines they may need and which are not available with pharmaceutical agents in Saudi Arabia.

The hospitals can now get their medicines directly from the manufacturer or through an authorized medicine wholesale commission agent. The order should be placed in the name of the government department concerned, but the ministry has to be given a copy of the list of medicines.

The decree, however, does not include banned medicines, anaesthetics, euphorics and psychological drugs which continue to need direct approval and clearance from the Health Ministry. The hospitals will be regularly supplied with up-to-date lists of authorized dealers.

Expats reminded, carry identity cards always

JEDDAH, Feb. 19 — All foreigners in Saudi Arabia have been reminded that they should always have their identity cards and residence permits with them to produce in the case of a spot check.

Passports Director General Brig. Fahd Al-Sharif told Al-Madina that expatriates should not go out without carrying their legal documents within the cities where their sponsors are based. By so doing, he said the foreigners would be safe from misunderstandings at any moment and wherever they may be.

Agriculture Ministry plans new building

LONDON, Feb. 19 (LPS) — A new building for the Ministry of Agriculture will be constructed in Riyadh as part of the Saudi Arabian government's agriculture expansion plans.

The building will include soil-testing laboratories for the science of paleontology and palynology, as well as offices, a conference center and library. A separate water tower will be a distinctive feature. The exterior is to be clad in brown and cream polished marble.

The Owen Luder Partnership of London is working on the 12 million-pound six-story building, with a floor area of more than 11,000 square meters, in association with Muhammad Nakshabandi, the Riyadh-based architect. Work on the complex is due to start later this year and is scheduled for completion about 18 months later.

Arabization of computers benefits small businesses

By K.S. Ramakumar
Arab News Staff

JEDDAH, Feb. 19 — The Al-Jeraisy Riyadh House Establishment has embarked on the Arabization of its software range to cater to the needs of the small and medium business houses in the Kingdom and the rest of the Middle East, according to its Computer Division General Manager Akbar Ahmad.

Ahmad told Arab News that the computers are being provided with the in-house done Arabic keyboards, in addition to English.

He said Riyadh House Establishment President Abdul Rahman Al Jeraisy, with his whole range of micro and mini computers, including 'Apple,' 'Wang' and now 'Victor,' realized the importance of the Arabic capabilities, of American origin, and employed a large number of Arabs and non-Arabs to develop the different types of software technology.

The establishment, Ahmad said, is also offering in-house training facilities to customers' engineering staff programs and analysts. "Thus, we are unique in the Kingdom to offer software and hardware training under one roof. Our specialty is to give in-house training to customers before marketing our products," Ahmad added.

He said the establishment is trying to attract local talents and since they are scarce in the Kingdom, it is scouting for them in Arab countries. A few of them are soon coming from Jordan and Lebanon. Hitherto, talents were tapped from the United States, the United Kingdom, India, Pakistan and the Philippines.

With a view to creating an awareness about computers, Ahmad said, the establishment, within a month, is making available free use of its various micro computers in its showroom. "Anyone can freely learn their operation and use. Our instructors and manuals will be made readily available," Ahmad added.

A couple of months later, he said, a seminar on software use in the printing industry will be organized by the establishment which will cover areas like production control, stock control, financial accounting and payroll personnel. The seminar is aimed at introducing the highly sophisticated system in the printing industry, in the Kingdom in particular and the Gulf in general, he said.

In the automobile business, since the specialized software is rarely available, Ahmad said: "We have identified a special package comprising our software with the 'Wang' hardware." A demonstration was held for the 'Mazda' distributors recently when the package exhibited included car stock book, financial control systems, stock calculating systems, and spare parts and workshop management systems.

"In fact, we are pioneers in introducing to the automobile and printing industries the micro systems," Ahmad said and added that in the mini and micro systems, "we have by far the largest number of installations — totaling over 2,000 in the Kingdom. Even in remote places like in Tabuk, Taif, Makkah and Madinah, we have our installations."

He said there is a growing software library to meet business ends plus programming for specified business applications. The establishment has been the leader in the office equipment in the Kingdom for the last 26 years and has now very well positioned itself within its entire range of the best brands in these fields.

Abdul Rahman Al Jeraisy, who organized the establishment from a small operation a quarter century ago to a reputable organization, has expanded the body which now has 19 branches and 29 showrooms all over the Kingdom, Ahmad said.

In January, the establishment had the distinction of becoming the world's largest distributor of Wang Laboratories Corporation which produces a whole range of mini computers — word processors and office information system.

In the show held in January by Wang in collaboration with the establishment, the latest Arabic/English word processing system and Wang professional computer besides Alliance 250 with the digital Voice exchange were displayed.

In the recently concluded Middle East Electricity and Electronics Exhibition at the Jeddah Expo Center, the establishment launched the 'Victor 9,000' micro computer. The system was adjudged by several international bodies as one of the most powerful systems in its class and price range, its main highlight being its greater memory, its sales engineer Muhammad Arif said.

It starts with memory of 28 KB extendable to 866 KB. The system allows greater storage capacity to 1.2 MB and supports CP/N-86 and MS-DOS system for operating the powerful 16-bit 8088 micro processor.

Ahmad said Victor has an anti-glare screen and has a high resolution matrix which can display both a standard 80 column format and an expanded column 132 format for extended data, charts and graphs.

DESKTOP BUSINESS COMPUTER: The Victor 9,000 is a fully integrated computer system designed for business applications, like a personal or home computer, it takes up little more desk space than a typewriter.

Despite rift over enclaves

Moroccan-Spanish ties stay cordial

RABAT, Feb. 19 (R) — Spanish and Moroccan officials said relations between their two countries remained cordial, despite tension over two disputed Spanish enclaves on Morocco's Mediterranean coast.

Spanish Transport and Communications Minister Enrique Barón, who arrived in Rabat at the head of a government economic mission, told reporters he was sure two days of talks would be friendly and would produce positive results.

Moroccan officials said the visit indicated relations remained cordial. The dispute over the Ceuta and Melilla enclaves flared last week when an Arab conference here called on Madrid to begin negotiating the return of the territories to Morocco.

The Spanish press reacted angrily to the demand, saying it was part of a campaign by Morocco to press its claim in the style of a 1975 "green march" by thousands of unarmed Moroccans which forced Madrid to give up the Spanish Sahara.

The official Moroccan position on the enclaves, in Spanish hands for five centuries, is that Morocco has never abandoned its claims to them and still considers them integral parts of its territory.

Barón, accompanied by Agriculture and Fisheries Minister Carlos Romero, said he would deliver a message to King Hassan from the Spanish Prime Minister, Felipe Gonzalez, who will visit Morocco next month according to local press reports here.

In Madrid, informed sources said King Hassan would be told that Gonzalez felt any pressure over the enclaves would compromise cooperation between their countries.

Smuggling arms to Libya

Ex-CIA agent jailed for 17 years

HOUSTON, Feb. 19 (AP) — A judge sentenced former American intelligence agent Edwin Wilson to 17 years in prison Friday for smuggling plastic explosives to Libya, but denied prosecutors' request to declare him a "dangerous, special offender" that could have meant an additional eight years.

Politicians wary of Ershad's offer

DHAKA, Feb. 19 (Agencies) — Political leaders in Bangladesh reacted warily to Lt. Gen. Hussein Muhammad Ershad's proposed dialogue with them on the country's future after this week's student violence.

A spokesman for a group of left-wing parties said the military ruler should first create the right atmosphere by releasing all politicians and students detained during two days of violence.

Troops were still patrolling the streets of the capital, where bunkers were erected in what observers saw as a bid to prevent a further outbreak of student violence on Feb. 21, the anniversary of "Martyrs Day."

Ershad reiterated his pledge to return power to the elected representatives of the people and appealed to the nation, particularly political parties, to rise above factionalism and extend all-out cooperation to the government and its program, and also to participate in a national dialogue to revive healthy politics in Bangladesh.

Meanwhile, Ershad and visiting Nepalese Prime Minister Surya Bahadur Thapa Saturday met for an hour of discussions that focused on next month's nonaligned New Delhi summit and on the Afghan and Cambodian issues, a spokesman said.

The spokesman did not mention whether or not the two sides had agreed on a common stand on Afghanistan and Cambodia at the nonaligned summit.

years for smuggling weapons and was indicted this week on charges of trying to hire a hit man to kill prosecutors and witnesses.

U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling told prosecutors at the outset of the hearing that he was not inclined to grant the special designation.

The 17-year sentence was the maximum Wilson could have received on the four counts of smuggling explosives.

Wilson was convicted Feb. 6 of smuggling 21 tons of the plastic explosive C-4, disguised as a petroleum drilling ingredient, from Houston to Tripoli in October 1977.

Wilson and his 22-year-old son, Erik, were indicted Wednesday by a federal grand jury in New York on charges they plotted to pay $1.25 million for the killings of two prosecutors and six witnesses while the elder Wilson was in New York.

Wilson, 54, also faces trial in Washington on charges of conspiring to murder a Libyan defector and to train terrorists.

Marines patrol new E. Beirut areas

BEIRUT, Feb. 19 (R) — U.S. Marines began patrolling new areas of Christian East Beirut Saturday, joining French and Italian units helping the Lebanese Army in its security plan for the whole of Greater Beirut.

A Marines spokesman said four jeeps containing 15 Marines and one Lebanese liaison officer set out Saturday from the Marine headquarters beside Beirut International Airport.

The Lebanese army took control of Greater Beirut last Tuesday when it replaced the Christian militias which till then had handled security in East Beirut. The army moved into the mainly Muslim western half of the city last September.

French and Italian troops from the multinational force in Beirut set up checkpoints in East Beirut on Wednesday, but the Marines decided to restrict themselves to mobile patrols, starting and ending at their airport base. A U.S. Embassy spokesman said Saturday this was because the Marines' position was farther south than those of the French and Italians and farther away from key areas of East Beirut and its suburbs.

Asked if there were any political reasons such as the use by Israeli invasion forces of certain roads through Greater Beirut for the decision against fixed positions, as some Beirut newspapers have speculated, the spokesman said: "Not as far as I know."

Since the Greater Beirut plan started, Israeli patrols have made at least two attempts to deviate from the roads assigned to them and drive past Lebanese army checkpoints.

Earlier there were several confrontations — none of them resulting in shooting — between the Israelis and Marine positions near the airport.

Turkey arrests 67 more leftists

ANKARA, Feb. 19 (R) — Security forces have arrested 67 alleged members of illegal leftist organizations active before the September 1980 military coup. Ankara martial law authorities said.

They said Friday 39 alleged members of Dev-Yol (revolutionary way) and 28 members of the Revolutionary Peoples' Union were rounded up during recent security operations around the Turkish capital. Five pistols, ammunition, and leftist propaganda material had also been seized.

The 67 will be charged with trying to establish a Marxist state, murders, causing bodily harm, arson, bombings and robberies, the authorities said. Some 30,000 militant trade unionists and other activists have been arrested in Turkey since the coup.

Meanwhile, it was announced that Turkish Foreign Minister Ilter Turkmen will visit Libya next week for talks on Middle East problems and bilateral trade.

Hussein concludes visit to Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Feb. 19 (R) — King Hussein of Jordan left Belgrade Saturday after a 24-hour official visit and talks with President Petar Stambolic on the Middle East, nonaligned movement and bilateral trade. Jordanian officials said he was going to London for a brief private visit before returning home.

King Hussein arrived in Yugoslavia from Romania where he met President Nicolae Ceausescu.

At a state dinner Friday night, King Hussein said: "The Arab nation, particularly the Palestinian people, demand the return of their rights and to live in peace with all other peoples, including the right of the Palestinians to return to their homeland and realize their legitimate rights." Stambolic called for a just solution of the Palestinian problem, which he said was the key to the Middle East crisis.

Both leaders denounced Israeli "aggressive, expansionist and brutal" policies.

Khomeini's aide escapes bid on life

LONDON, Feb. 19 (R) — A close aide of Iranian leader Ayatollah Khomeini escaped an assassination attempt in the eastern Iranian city of Mashhad Friday, the national news agency, IRNA said.

It said Hajj Ali Akbar Mojtahedi, Khomeini's representative in Khorasan province, was attacked by two members of the radical People's Mujahideen at a Friday prayers rally. One of the assailants was shot dead and the other was wounded by Revolutionary Guards, IRNA said.

OAU summit likely in May

NAIROBI, Feb. 19 (AP) — Twelve African leaders decided that the troubled Organization of African Unity should hold its twice-aborted 19th summit next May or June at Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, without "precondition" Kenyan Foreign Minister Robert Ouko said.

Ouko's brief statement to reporters indicated that the high-level conference on Friday failed to resolve differences over Chad's new pro-West regime and the Polisario Front independence movement which scuttled attempts to hold the summit last year in Tripoli, Libya.

By switching the site to Addis Ababa, the OAU's headquarters, Friday's meeting called into question whether Col. Muammar Qaddafi would become the regional body's chairman. As host to the planned Tripoli summit, he would automatically have gotten the normally 12-month post if the two attempts had not failed.

Kenyan President Daniel Arap Moi, the current OAU chairman, opened Friday's "mini-summit" by saying that a major crisis threatens the existence of the 20-year-old organization, preventing it from dealing with such crucial issues as South African aggression, independence of Southwest Africa (Namibia) and the severe economic recession gripping the continent.

The OAU's present troubles began with a successful boycott led by Morocco over the admission of the Polisario Front last August in Tripoli.

The collapse of the meeting left the OAU in disarray until now, its charter requiring member states to hold a summit at least once a year but not specifying what to do if a session cannot be convened.

At the Nairobi "mini-summit" as the Kenyan hosts called it, Libya was represented by Maj. Abdussalam Jalloud — the Tripoli regime's No. 2 man, who like other delegates refused to comment on Friday's outcome.

Hidayatullah to meet Mubarak

CAIRO, Feb. 19 (AP) — Indian Vice President Hidayatullah, who arrived Saturday with his wife for a six-day, official visit in advance of next month's nonaligned summit in New Delhi.

The Indian official was welcomed at Cairo airport by Prime Minister Foad Mubieddin, Interior Minister Hassan Abu Basha and other Egyptian and Indian officials.

During the visit, the vice president is also expected to meet President Hosni Mubarak. His talks with Mubieddin will also include arrangements for the nonaligned conference opening March 7.

Mubarak plans to attend the session, which the Egyptians hope will increase their stature in the nonaligned movement. Mubarak has been receiving visitors that Egypt under the late President Gamal Abdul Nasser was a co-founder of the movement.

W. Germany rejects N-free zone proposal

BONN, West Germany, Feb. 19 (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl on Friday rejected calls to make Central Europe a nuclear-free zone, saying it would merely "give the illusion of greater security."

Kohl was replying to a letter from East German President and Communist Party chief Erich Honecker, who declared his support of Sweden's nuclear-free proposal and urged Bonn to do the same.

But Kohl said in a letter released Friday that "in the face of the conventional superiority of the Warsaw Pact in Europe, such a zone would in fact increase the risk of confrontation."

He said "the decisive factor is not whether nuclear weapons are stationed in an area but whether they are targeted against that area" — an apparent reference to Soviet intermediate-range rockets pointed at Western Europe.

In Berlin, a brief report by the official East German news agency ADN quoted Honecker as criticizing "the negative position" of West Germany.

Kohl said negotiations focused only on the mutual pullback of East-West nuclear arsenals "would not heighten stability but rather create an illusion of greater security."

"It would distract from the ongoing arms reduction negotiations and thereby make a speedy result difficult," he told Honecker that the West German standard for political arms reduction proposals is that they "prevent every type of military conflict, including conventional warfare in Europe."

"Therefore we do not find ourselves in a position to support you," Kohl, a conservative Christian Democrat, has asserted his support for plans by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to begin deploying a new

Aid for Ghana discussed

LONDON, Feb. 19 (AP) — Envoys from six Communist countries met in Ghana Friday with a government official to discuss resettlement aid for Ghanaians expelled from Nigeria, Accra radio reported.

The radio, monitored in London by the British Broadcasting Corp., said the envoys from Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Soviet Union, Poland, Hungary and Cuba met with P.V. Obeng, coordinating secretary of the Provisional National Defense Council.

The talks were about the exact type of aid needed and followed similar meetings with a number of African diplomatic missions in Ghana, the radio said.

Obeng reportedly said the government has initiated plans to group the expellees into agricultural cooperatives and that precise ways and means were now being worked out.

Earlier reports from West Africa put the number of Ghanaians returning home at around one million.

generation of medium-range nuclear missiles in Western Europe this year if U.S.-Soviet arms reduction talks fail.

NATO would station 204 of the 572 new U.S.-built Pershing II and Cruise missiles in West Germany, with the remainder deployed in Belgium, Britain, the Netherlands and Italy.

The missiles have become a key issue in the campaign for March 6 parliamentary elections in West Germany.

Recent polls indicate the anti-nuclear Greens' coalition stands a chance of winning the minimum 5 percent of the vote necessary to qualify for representation in parliament for the first time.

Young Poles demonstrate

WARSAW, Feb. 19 (AP) — Between 1,000 and 2,000 young people staged a protest march in the southern Polish city of Krakow Thursday night commemorating the second anniversary of the now-banned independent students' organization, official sources said.

The young people attended a prayer meeting at Krakow's central old section, and as they left began chanting slogans against the government, the sources said. The marchers dispersed slowly but peacefully, they said.

The Krakow disturbance came four days after police used tear gas and long rubber riot sticks to disperse about 2,000 protesters in central Warsaw. The government denied using force to break up the Warsaw demonstration, but acknowledged that similar protests were staged peacefully Sunday in the Baltic port of Gdansk and the southwestern city of Wroclaw.

Such spontaneous protests appear to be flaring again in Poland recently after three peaceful months, as people express discontent over the continuing economic crisis and the dissolution of the independent Solidarity labor movement last October.

The independent students' federation, which was the focus of Thursday's demonstration in Krakow, was founded at the height of Solidarity influence.

Both bodies were suspended with the declaration of martial law in December 1981, and subsequently disbanded. Authorities have founded new organizations to take their places.

After leaving church, the young people marched to Krakow University, where they chanted more slogans, the sources said. The marchers dispersed gradually with no interference from police.

RECORD DOUGHNUT: Inhabitants of Stams, a small Austrian village, last weekend said they established two records for the Guinness Book of Records. They produced a doughnut with a diameter of 1.62 meters in what they said was the biggest frying pan. The pan measured 1.80 meters weighing 60 kilos.

It's war of aggression, Nakasone admits

TOKYO, Feb. 19 (AP) — Yasuhiro Nakasone became the first Japanese prime minister to say in public that the Japanese military incursion into China during the 1930s and 1940s was a war of aggression brought about by Japan, Kyodo news service reported.

Nakasone, replying to a question by an opposition party member at a Diet (parliament) budget committee hearing, said he accepts the international definition of the Sino-Japanese war as a war of aggression.

Sri Lanka police official slain

COLOMBO, Feb. 19 (AFP) — Militants of Sri Lanka's Tamil minority struck again Friday night when a police officer and his driver were shot to death at Point Pedro near the northern capital of Jaffna, press reports from the northern area said Saturday.

Police Inspector R.J. Wijewardene had driven into the town unarmed and in civilian clothes when he and his driver, who was not identified, were met with a hail of bullets from a submachine gun and revolver, the Kyodo said. Nakasone's remarks went a step beyond the official Japanese government view that the war fought between Japan and China is internationally criticized as an act of aggression and that the Japanese government is fully aware of this international criticism, it said.

Meanwhile Nakasone's popularity has dropped because of recent statements supporting a strong national defense, according to a nationwide public opinion survey conducted this week by a major Japanese newspaper.

The Asahi Shimbun reported Saturday that a survey of 3,000 adults on Wednesday and Thursday showed that support for the Nakasone cabinet had plunged to 29 percent from the 37 percent it received shortly after its inauguration Nov. 27.

The latest survey found that non-support had risen to 43 percent from the previous 37 percent, it said. Nakasone's hawkish stand on defense and on the question of revising Japan's war-renouncing constitution negatively affected his popularity, the newspaper said.

The Asahi said support for the Nakasone cabinet among backers of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party had fallen from 94 percent to 46 percent.

"A considerable number" of those polled disagreed with Nakasone's statement that Japan should be made an "unsinkable aircraft carrier," it said. Nakasone was widely criticized after he made the comment in an interview with The Washington Post during his visit last month to the United States.

2 Soviet aides fired for laxness

MOSCOW, Feb. 19 (AP) — A deputy minister and a top aide have been dismissed from the Ministry of Aviation Industry for laxness and a third official was jailed for 15 years for embezzling more than $80,000, Pravda said Saturday.

Mikhail S. Mikhaylov, one of seven deputy ministers at the Ministry of Aviation Industry, was fired for failing to crack down on a currency swindle, Pravda said. Sergei Andriyev, chief of the ministry's international relations department, also lost his job because of negligence, the Communist Party daily newspaper said.

Pravda said the scandal came to light when an official identified as N. Laikov was seized at a Moscow railway station while opening a luggage locker allegedly containing smuggled goods.

Authorities discovered that Laikov, who oversaw distribution of foreign currency for the ministry's exhibitions of equipment overseas and made frequent trips abroad, had "pocketed and spent for himself a sum equal to more than 60,000 roubles ($84,000)," Pravda said.

The case was one of several revealed in a lengthy article in the newspaper.

The article appeared to be part of campaign by Yuri V. Andropov, general secretary of the Communist Party, to impose tighter discipline throughout Soviet society and crack down on crime and corruption.

Uganda priest held

KAMPALA, Uganda, Feb. 19 (AP) — Authorities have detained a Roman Catholic priest at Kampala's Luzira Maximum Security Prison on suspicion of providing food to anti-government guerrillas, the church-run Munno newspaper reported Saturday.

It was the first instance of a clergyman being taken into custody by the government since the 1979 overthrow of Idi Amin.

Munno reported that Francis Kizito, a Ugandan citizen, voluntarily gave himself up to Internal Affairs Minister John Lwiza-Kirunda last Tuesday after hearing that Vice President Paulo Muwanga had accused him of anti-state activities.

No charges have been filed against the priest, who can be held indefinitely under Ugandan security laws. He has been visited by Cardinal Emmanuel Nsubuga and other church leaders.

Muwanga, who is also defense minister, had charged that Kizito gave food to insurgents in a forest near his parish at Katende, 25 kilometers west of Kampala, the capital.

The vice president attributed the allegation to a Pakistani named Sajjad Haider, who was arrested at Entebbe Airport last December. Haider, who uses an alias of Muhammad Sajjahi, was charged in a Kampala court this month with having advised rebels while in the pay of Libyan leader Col. Muammar Qaddafi.

Congress set to fight gas weapons plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP) — Opponents in Congress are mobilizing to fight the Reagan administration's renewed push for a $140 million program to build a new generation of nerve gas weapons.

"I think that our chances are reasonably good to block it in the Senate," Democrat Sen. David Pryor of Arkansas said Friday.

Pryor, one of the leaders of last year's successful drive in Congress to defeat a similar Pentagon request, asserted that "the army has not made a good case for production of the binaries."

Noting that the United States already has a massive stockpile of nerve gas, Pryor said the new arsenal of binary weapons, which would be produced in his state, "does not make any economic or military sense whatsoever."

Binary weapons are those in which two non-lethal chemical components are packaged separately and then combine to form a killing nerve agent while the projectile carrying them is in flight toward a target.

The fiscal 1984 funds being sought by the Department of Defense would include money to start turning out 155-millimeter shells to carry binary chemicals.

Arkansas Representative Ed Bethune, a Republican, warned Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger at a budget committee hearing on Wednesday that "this House is not going to authorize production of binary (weapons) this year."

"The political mind in the House and the environment in the country is more against you this year. So I just don't see how you expect to get that back into this budget," he said.

Weinberger replied that "we budget on what we see as our needs. They have been measured by the threat."

Republican Representative Jim Leach of Iowa, another outspoken opponent of the program, said Friday: "What is needed is chemical weapons arms control, not a new arms race that nobody can win."

President Ronald Reagan appealed to Congress in 1982 to approve production of the nerve gas munitions, arguing they are needed to deter Soviet use of chemical weaponry in a war.

Specialists contend that the new binary weapons will not be dangerous either to military personnel handling them or to civilians living around storage areas. However, critics claim the program is militarily unnecessary and politically unwise.

The United States has manufactured no chemical weapons since 1969. Meanwhile, military officials have told Congress repeatedly that the current stockpile of chemical weapons is old and that many of the munitions are unusable.

Despite Reagan's 1982 appeal, Congress finally rejected the request for $54.4 million to start producing binary weapons, the 155-millimeter artillery shell and a bomb called Bigeyes.

The army's annual report to Congress, delivered earlier this week, contains a brief reference to a bid for funds to begin producing 155 millimeter binary shells in fiscal 1984, which begins Oct. 1.

In its appeal to the new Congress the army said: "The Soviet Union possesses a formidable and expanding chemical warfare capability and continues to devote significant resources to research and development of chemical warfare programs."

"To meet this threat, the army must have a chemical retaliatory capability for deterrence and the capability to respond effectively with chemical weapons if deterrence fails."

Swedish model tricked in an identity switch

AUCKLAND, Feb. 19 (R) — A Colombian woman, wanted in the United States for her alleged role in a big drug smuggling conspiracy, has slipped out of New Zealand after an identity switch plot involving a Swedish model, police said Saturday.

They said the Colombian, Susie Schuster, left on a plane using the air ticket and passport of a 19-year-old model from Stockholm who was tricked into coming to New Zealand by a smooth-talking Latin American.

The model, Anne-Kristin Kilmin, was stranded in Auckland after her companion fled with her documents, turned them over to Schuster and joined her on a flight back to South America.

Miss Kilmin and the 26-year-old Colombian woman were both fair, green-eyed and petite. Police said the Swedish girl was the victim of an elaborate scheme to get Schuster home without being detained by U.S. drugs investigators on the way.

Schuster was arrested at Auckland Airport after a tip off from U.S. authorities last July. The Americans unsuccessfully sought her extradition on charges of conspiring to import cocaine and laundering millions of dollars of drug syndicate money. She was freed on Nov. 12.

Police said they believed Miss Kilmin was duped into flying to New Zealand by a Colombian called Hernandez. He wooed her with lavish compliments while she was modeling for television commercials in the South American country last month. He gave her $2,000 for clothes and bought her a return air ticket for the trip to Auckland on Feb. 2.

But after two days of high living he walked out, leaving her with a $900 hotel bill.

Americans to view live heart surgery on TV

PHOENIX, Arizona, Feb. 19 (AP) — Americans will have a chance to view open heart surgery in their living rooms next week when a television station broadcasts it live to "cause people to think" about their lifestyles.

The operation is to be performed Wednesday night, probably on a 62-year-old man from the state of Wisconsin who requires double bypass surgery, spokesmen for the Arizona Health Institute and Kaet-TV station said Friday.

Kaet executives said the broadcast, which caps a series on heart-related topics, will "cause people to think" about their lifestyles and encourage viewers with heart problems to seek needed surgery.

"Once the incision is made and spaced with the retractors, you're let into a different world," said Tom Shannon, a producer for Kaet, which is owned and operated by Arizona State University.

"We've decided to let the viewers see it all," he said. "We're not in the censorship business."

The broadcast will be offered by Kaet to other public broadcasting service stations via satellite, the station said. PBS is a network of non-commercial, independent educational stations. By late Friday, about 35 stations in 20 states had indicated interest in airing the program, live or on tape.

The Wisconsin man is an overweight, former heavy cigarette smoker who has led a "fairly sedentary" life, according to Julie Adams, a spokeswoman for the institute, a private medical center founded in 1971 specializing in heart treatment.

But she did not identify him, saying he might not be the one whose operation is broadcast, because several other patients also are scheduled for surgery Wednesday.

The Wisconsin man needs veins implanted around blocked sections of two coronary arteries, institute officials said.

Heading the surgical team at St. Joseph's Hospital and Medical Center will be Dr. Edward B. Dietrich, in the operating room, and by another institute surgeon and Kaet's science editor, both in the station's studio in suburban Tempe.

Questions phoned in by viewers will be relayed to the narrators for answers "in laymen's terms," said institute producer Dick Williams.

S.A. judge rejects police evidence

PRETORIA, Feb. 19 (AP) — In a highly unusual move, a judge on Friday released on bail an anti-apartheid cleric accused of treason after ruling that an incriminating statement the defendant apparently made to police under duress was inadmissible evidence.

Pretoria Supreme Court Judge H.J. Van der Walt also granted a two-month postponement requested by the state, so it could search for a missing key witness in the treason trial of Cedric Mayson.

Mayson testified he made the damaging 29-page statement after a weekend of standing naked, handcuffed and deprived of sleep. He said a tuft of hair was pulled out by one interrogator, leaving a bald spot, and that exaggerations and untruths were added to please his captors.

Thirteen security policemen testified Mayson was not mistreated. Van der Walt gave no reason for throwing the statement out of court.

Mayson, a 53-year-old Methodist minister, is accused of belonging to the banned African National Congress, which seeks the overthrow of the white-minority government.

Prince Rainier ponders on big if

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (R) — Prince Rainier of Monaco says in an exclusive interview published Saturday a specialist was certain his wife, Princess Grace, would have been paralyzed on one side if she had survived a car crash last September.

Doctors said the former actress suffered a stroke while driving in the hills overlooking Monaco with her daughter, Stephanie. She was 52 when she died.

Prince Rainier, 59, said in the interview with Life magazine that doctors told him his wife could have lived had it not been for the crash.

"I must say it's a dreadful thing to hear after you've lost somebody that, well, she needn't have died. The neurologist who came from Paris said that he was sure that, if the princess had lived, she would have been paralyzed on one side," he said.

But if she had survived, he said, "there was a lot of damage in the brain. I think that (paralysis) would have been terrible for her." Discussing his future plans, he said he would step down when he thought his son, Prince Albert, 24, was ready to take over.

"I've always said that I don't want to drag on. He's young. He's got plenty of stamina and will, and he knows the place well," the prince said. "He was born here, educated here, so I think the day he feels ready, why not? I don't believe in making him wait until I die off."

The prince quoted his daughter, Stephanie, as saying just after the accident that Princess Grace had panicked and lost control of the car. "Stephanie was so serious when she said, 'oh, mommy panicked. She didn't know what to do. She lost control,'" he told the American magazine.

His daughter said nothing else about the accident, he added. "I didn't want to press her, of course. Maybe some day she'll be more talkative. One can feel that she's closed off on that subject."

Princess Grace, the former Grace Kelly, left her film career to marry Prince Rainier in 1956.

China disfavors shift of SS-20s

PEKING, Feb. 19 (AP) — Foreign Minister Wu Xueqian told Japanese envoy Susumu Nikaide on Saturday that China does not expect substantive progress when Sino-Soviet talks resume next month, Japanese sources said.

Wu told Nikaide that China understands Japan's efforts to build up its defenses are a reaction to the military threat from the Soviet Union, said the sources, who asked not to be identified.

The foreign minister also said China does not want the Soviet Union to shift its SS-20 missiles away from Europe because it would not reduce the threat to Europe and would increase the threat to Asia, the sources said.

Nikaide, secretary-general of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party, arrived Friday for four days of talks. He held a first round of talks with Wu on bilateral relations shortly after arrival and the three-hour session Saturday was devoted to international affairs.

China and the Soviet Union are to hold consultations in Moscow in early March aimed at improving relations.

Wu told Nikaide that China will insist that the Soviets respond to China's three demands: Cease Soviet support for Vietnam's occupation of Cambodia, withdraw Soviet troops from Afghanistan and reduce its forces along the Sino-Soviet border. China says real improvement in Sino-Soviet relations cannot take place until progress is made in at least one of these areas.

Wu told Nikaide, the sources said, that it is difficult to envision any substantive progress in just one or two sessions of the talks.

BRIEFS

LOS ANGELES (R) — Comedian Danny Kaye, 70, had a heart bypass operation in Los Angeles Friday, a hospital spokesman said. Kaye, whose films include The Secret Life of Walter Mitty, The Kid From Brooklyn and The Inspector General, entered Cedars Sinai Hospital 12 days ago for tests because of an irregular heart rhythm. The spokesman said the operation was a preventive measure to reduce the chance of further complications.

TOKYO (AP) — Sixteen persons were injured in a 58-vehicle chain collision in southwestern Japan during windy, snowy weather, police said Saturday. A northbound four-ton truck lost control on the slippery road, hit a center divider and overturned, setting off the chain collision, police said in Kurume, about 900 kilometers southwest of Tokyo.

LA PAZ, (AFP) — The bodies of 14 political and trade union leaders, missing since a 1971 military coup by Gen. Hugo Banzer, were found Friday in a mass grave, the Bolivian Human Rights Permanent Assembly announced. The human rights body lists more than 140 "missing persons" who disappeared in Bolivia during military rule.

CHICAGO, Illinois, (AFP) — A former Thai consul to the United States, Sihadej Chindawongse, has been sentenced to 30 years in prison for having used his diplomatic status to smuggle heroin into the country. Chindawongse, 42, pleaded guilty on Jan. 12 to having imported 3.8 kilograms of almost pure heroin in March and April.

PARIS, (AFP) — The French Socialist Party expressed its "indignation" over the hanging in Malaysia of two oppositionists, Heng King Chong and Liew Weng Seng, and over two scheduled hangings. In a communique, the party protested what it termed "this new act of barbarism", referring to the execution of numbers of political opponents to the Malaysian regime last month.

WASHINGTON (AFP) — The Justice Department is seeking to widen the powers of the Federal Bureau of Investigation by allowing it to investigate U.S. citizens more freely and by seeking to protect its agents from possible lawsuits, the CBS Television network says.

HARARE (AFP) — The government here has banned American journalist Holger Jensen, a correspondent for Newsweek magazine, from working in Zimbabwe. Minister of Information Nathan Shamuyarira announced Saturday that Jensen's accreditation has been withdrawn because of his "persistently false and exaggerated reports on Zimbabwe since independence," according to the semi-governmental newspaper The Herald.

Arab panorama-3

Iron horses of the desert--old and new

In this article, the third in our series on Arab panoramas, Peter Boxhall makes an exciting journey back into the distant past and far into the future to recall the early days of the railway development in this part of the world and to unfold its future dimensions which, if materialized, will facilitate the movement of freight and people from Morocco to Egypt on the one hand and from the Atlantic Ocean to the Red Sea on the other.

Within a decade, as you fly over the expanse of the Arabian peninsula, you will see below not only the topography and ever-changing colors of the desert landscape, the brown, the black, the yellow, the red, but, if you look carefully, the silver glint of parallel steel lines, criss-crossing the expanse of the Kingdom and extending beyond, from the blue, green waters of the Indian Ocean to the white Taurus mountains of Turkey, and to the green fields of Europe. The reason is simply this: we are about to enter the Age of the Train.

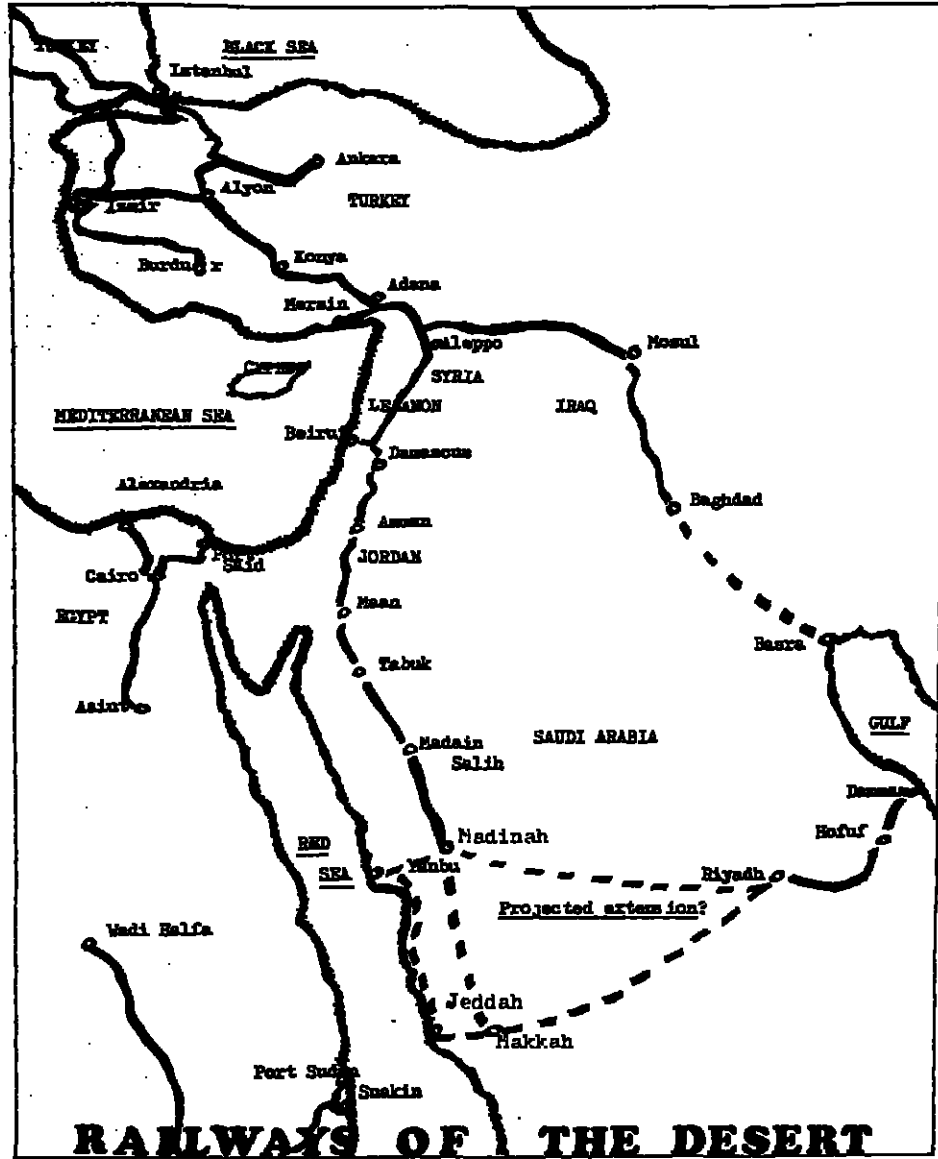

As an inveterate traveler on the surface routes of this area, I shall, however, have one or two regrets. Most of these new lines will be for commercial traffic; and none of the fast, new locomotives, electric or diesel, will allow me the slow, leisurely progression across the landscape that has so interested me in past years.

Just now, I think it is likely that I can claim to have traveled on all the railways of the region: somehow, at some time, on some part of them.

I have traveled with the west African pilgrims, across savannah and desert, from Nyala, Sudan Railway's westernmost outpost, via Khartoum, to the Red Sea terminus at Port Sudan. The train should have taken 700 passengers but on this occasion there were 1,500 of us: many of them non-paying, pilgrimage passengers, clinging with a tenacious hold, at least on the 1,300 kilometer-leg from Nyala to Khartoum, as we trundled along on the 3-day journey, stopping at each of the 77 stations. The problems with this network, which reaches as far south as Juba, and as far north as the Egyptian frontier at Wadi Halfa, are principally environmental. It qualifies essentially as a desert railway: the rail lines have to be lifted from the sands, 2 or 3 times a year, and leveled; the rains, heavy and frequent at some times of the year, wash away complete sections of the track.

To the north, I have traveled on a superb, air-conditioned train from Cairo to Alexandria: another journey across the desert; but one too short, too soon completed.

Still further north, across the Mediterranean, I have traveled less comfortably on the historical 'Orient Express' in its dying days, and been without food for two days on its five-day journey to Sirkeci station in Istanbul; thereafter, I have continued on the interminable, and forgettable, extension to Mersin, a commercial port in the southeast corner of the Turkish Republic. The railways in Turkey will improve, though: in February 1982, Saudi Arabia agreed to finance a $43.5 million program to improve the 577 kilometers of track linking the Mediterranean port of Iskenderun with Divrigi in eastern Turkey. This improvement, (and others which the dynamic, military government have in hand), will relieve the chronic state of Asian-bound traffic, and will, importantly, particularly assist the transportation of freight to Syria, Iraq and the Arab Gulf.

Southward from here, I have sat on the hard, wooden seats of the famous 'Hijaz' Railway; unfortunately, however, only between Damascus in Syria and Amman, and Amman to Maan in Jordan. Twice a week, the so-called German locomotives depart with their antiquated coaches from the terminus station, with its ornate ceiling, on its one day's journey to the Jordanian capital. In 1978, the first class fare for the 8-hour journey was a mere £1 Sterling. Perhaps it is not much more now and, sorry I was that I could not go south from Maan. I thought it an inexpensive, interesting journey; yet not exciting, as it had been in the World War II when Lawrence and the Bedouins had constantly ambushed the train and, in those days, the passengers had apparently, as a consequence, paid high prices to obtain a seat in the rear coaches.

So much has been written about this Ottoman railway, and my readers will be so familiar with it, that I will not dwell on it... except that I ought to say, otherwise not all my readers will know, that a new, definitive, evocative book has been published about it, which contains much that is unfamiliar. (The Hijaz Railway, by William Ochsenwald, published by the University of Virginia, U.S.)

The idea of a railway between Damascus and Makkah, to serve the pilgrims, was first conceived by either Dr. Zimble, a German-American, in 1864 or, as is sometimes claimed, by the editor of Lahore's Urdu magazine Watan in 1897. What is certain is that, on the orders of Sultan Abdul Hameed, work on it started on Sept. 1900, the twenty-fifth anniversary of his accession to the Sultanate, and what was unique about it is that it was the first railway in history to be paid for before selling its first ticket, and the first to be operated by a Waqf — a self-perpetuating, non-profit, religious endowment for the administration of property according to Muslim law.

The actual construction was preceded by a survey made by a Turkish engineer, Hadschdar Muxtar, who wisely traveled by camel along the centuries-old tracks followed by the pilgrimage and trade caravans: wisely, because the trains would need good supplies of water and the route already followed the line of regular watering points. Some 5,630 Turkish troops were used in the construction of what, in the Hijaz province, came to be called 'Jahshatul Sultan' (The Sultan's Pony), and a chain of forts was built, at one day's march apart, 48 stations constructed of local stone, some 11 miles apart from each other, and 1,970 bridges and culverts. In 1908, having reached Madinah, 800 miles to the south, it was officially opened. Nearly 1½ million passengers were to use it between 1908 and 1913. Then, as is so well known World War II intervened. By no means, however, is the story of this historical railroad yet at an end...

Today's 8 hour, 562 kilometers journey between Dammam and Riyadh, by comparison with my former journey on part of the 'Hijaz Railway', is completed in air-conditioned luxury. Departing respectively from Riyadh and Dammam at midday, and crossing in the middle of the line, where the track is double, there is much of interest to see as the train courses along beside the oil camps of the ubiquitous ARAMCO empire.

Also evocative, but of memories of days long since past, are the small, mostly local, railways of the desert that, sometime or another, have served a special need. In this category, I recall, with nostalgia, the derelict terminus at Suakin, south of Port Sudan, which until 1908 served so faithfully thousands of west African overland pilgrims: the line between Djibouti and Addis Ababa, along which I traveled in a freight car, which cost so many lives in its construction; the minuscule lines on the islands of Socotra and Khamar; the railway between Aden and Lahaj, and the railway from Tawahi to the Isthmus in Aden, which was proposed by Gen. Sir Robert Napier to support his campaign in Abyssinia (1867-68), but which, in the event, never was...

Let us now, though, have done with the past: the skeletons of once proud locomotives, the forlorn signals which no longer operate, the deserted passenger coaches, the rusting, dismembered bogies, the stacked-up rails and sleepers, the flotsam and jetsam. Let us instead look at the plans for the desert railways of the future.

To begin with the Arabian Peninsula, where the most ambitious of them are envisaged, we learn that, if Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia can finally resolve their few outstanding differences, there may arise — some 70 or so years on — be a 'Hijaz Railway'. A West German consultant has already completed a $5 million feasibility study. This project, however, is only a part of an overall plan. Saudi Arabia's 3rd Development Plan (1980-85), which foresees the comprehensive reconstruction of the Kingdom's existing railway system, and the extension of the network to link all the major cities. The plan in particular sanctions the replacement of 345 kilometers of the existing single track, and the construction of a second line, of 150 kilometers, between Dammam and Riyadh. Apart from this, the contract for laying a double track between Riyadh and Jeddah has already been awarded, and feasibility studies are in progress for a line between Jeddah, with links to the international airport, and to the industrial complex at Yanbu; and Makkah, on the west coast; and Dammam and Jubail on the east coast. Saudi Arabia's excellent roads are now becoming just too crowded, so the railways must necessarily cope with the huge increase in freight traffic. It is doing so, and will continue to do so in the future: 1,103 of 1,756 persons currently employed by the Saudi Government Railroad Organization (SGRO) are Saudi; during the past ten years, revenue from freight has increased from $1,835,294 to $3,010,882, and that of passenger traffic from $415,588 to $1,153,235.

On the east coast of Arabia, there are also exciting plans afoot. Kuwait has discussed with Saudi Arabia a plan to connect their two countries, and it has another plan in mind to link by rail with Iraq to the north. Of even greater regional significance is the prospect of a 1,700 kilometer long Gulf Railway. If this was to materialize, it would effectively link Iraq, not only with Kuwait, but with the Indian Ocean, by way of Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates. Additionally, there would be spurs to Bahrain, via the Causeway, and Qatar.

Elsewhere in the Arab world, particularly in the Near East region and in the north African and Magribian countries, there exists a similar problem of the need to supplement road transport systems which the railways, with their high bulk/value ratio capability, are ideally suited to meet.

In most Arab countries there are only narrow-gauge railways, dating from colonial times and now in a poor state of repair. Thus, in Syria, a 750 kilometer line from Latakia, its main port, to Qamishli, via Aleppo, was constructed by the Russians, and opened in January 1981. This was described at the time as being the first economically important and entirely new railway to be built in the Near East since World War II. Other projects in Syria, completed or being worked on, include a 208 kilometer standard gauge line from Damascus to Homs, a new link between Homs and Tartous, the country's second port, and the reconstruction of the old line between Aleppo, Hama and Homs.

Iraq's rail program calls for the laying of about 2,500 kilometers of new track. 380 kilometers of this will serve to link Baghdad with Husseiba on the Syrian frontier, and the Baghdad to Basra line is to be modernized.

Of the many current, or projected, plans for the railways of the north African and Magribian countries, those of Libya are the most significant. By 1985, it is intended to construct three major links. The first is to be a 170 kilometer railroad along the coast, from Ras Jadir, on the Tunisian border, to Tripoli. Another, 200 kilometers in length, would connect Tripoli with Misrata, where the Republic's first integrated steel works is under construction. The third, which is probably still only in the design stage, envisages a 1,300 kilometer line from Misrata to Masad, near the Egyptian frontier. If all the projects go according to plan, it is possible that, for the first time, freight will be carried by rail from Morocco to Egypt, from the Atlantic Ocean to the Red Sea.

From the Indian Ocean to Europe, from the Red Sea to the Atlantic, it seems that the future trains of the desert will not only take the commercial strain, but will greatly enhance the interest of the more leisurely traveler.

Rising juvenile crimes worry Peking leaders

By Michael Weisskopf

PEKING, (WP) — With youth crime rising, Chinese authorities are encouraging an unusual debate within the once-taboo social sciences to further the search for a solution.

For years, juvenile delinquency hardly was acknowledged here and was written off as a product of China's unresolved "class struggle" or past economic exploitation. Officials prided themselves on the safety of their streets while quietly exiling the few youth offenders to work camps for hard labor and Marxist teachings.

Looking beyond Marxist theories, they are planning the disturbing rise in juvenile crime on complex social factors including official corruption, unemployment, poor parental upbringing, stunted education, bad reformatories, rising expectations and the breakdown of traditional social values.

Law journals are exploring the subject for the first time, quoting liberally from Western psychologists who trace juvenile delinquency to unhappy mother-child relationships or to unfocused self concepts.

Specialists are opening forum discussions at universities, courts are training youth counselors and trade unions are setting up special youth centers. Sociologists are compiling China's first text on youth offenders — a 400,000-word tome — and have been exchanging hundreds of scholarly papers.

Part of the reason for the academic upsurge is the dramatic increase in crimes by persons between the ages of 14 and 25. In Shanghai, the rate of youth crime has increased from 10 percent of total offenses in 1950 to 62 percent in 1980. In many other cities, juveniles are said to account for more than 70 percent of total crimes, mostly thefts.

Even in the tradition-bound countryside, youth gangs reportedly have beaten up teachers and looted and wrecked school property.

Perhaps as significant are the changes observed in young offenders that seem to discredit old Marxist explanations for youth delinquency.

In 1950, "class enemies" — former landlords, nationalist party officials and security guards of old capitalists — were held responsible for most of Shanghai's thefts, according to the magazine Jurisprudence. But 30 years later, the blame was shifted to the pillars of Socialist society: young workers, peasants, cadres and students.

Hard facts also deflate the theory of economic deprivation. In Changzhou, one of China's richest cities with a high rate of employment, more than 73 percent of the crimes in the first quarter of last year were committed by teen-agers, according to Peking Daily.

Three quarters of the delinquents at a reformatory of another city came from middle-class homes by Chinese standards. In search of new theories, the specialists agree on the devastating moral effects of the Cultural Revolution from 1966 to 1976. The campaign turned social values upside down, unleashing youths to rebel against authority and tradition in the name of political purity.

"Beating, looting and smashing were regarded as heroic acts," said sociologist Fang Po, writing in the journal Legal Study. "This anarchist tendency thus constitutes the major ideological root of juvenile delinquency today."

Corrupt officials have since accelerated the criminal slide of many juveniles "who have a skeptical view of party propaganda and even believe committing crime is justified" because of official abuse, said Fang.

In this moral vacuum, youths are said to be increasingly drawn to the Western lifestyles exposed to them through China's tentative opening to the outside world.

"These people do their utmost to get modern consumer goods, such as color televisions, tape recorders, cameras and motorcycles," said the Legal Study article. "They will not stop at anything until they are led to crime. Some young people... sing vulgar songs and pass around obscene materials. They seek unrestrained freedom in everything and in a few cases barter away their moral integrity and national honor."

The new criminal sociologists prescribe better moral training at every level of Chinese society, but they generally conclude that reformatories now housing wayward youth are failing in their jobs.

By Everton in F.A. Cup

Spurs' successful streak snapped

LONDON, Feb. 19 (Agencies) — Andy King and Graeme Sharp hit second half goals Saturday as tenacious Everton defeated Tottenham Hotspur 2-0 at Goodison Park and ended the London club's two-year English Football Association (F.A.) Cup reign.

King scored in the 49th minute and Sharp was on target in the 63rd minute as Everton dominated the fifth round game. Tottenham had been hoping to become the first team this century to win the F.A. cup three years in succession, but never got into their stride against the determined home side.

Everton were joined in the last eight of English soccer's premier knockout tournament by Manchester United, Aston Villa, Norwich City and Second Division Sheffield Wednesday. Norwich reached the quarter-finals by defeating local rivals Ipswich Town 1-0 in front of a sellout crowd at Carrow Road. Keith Bertschin, a former Ipswich player, scored the all-important goal in the sixth minute.

Manchester United were held goalless by Second Division Derby County until four minutes from full time. England international winger Steve Coppell, who earlier had been hit by a missile thrown from the crowd, then set up a chance for 17-year-old Norman Whiteside, who scored with aplomb.

European Champions' Cup holders Aston Villa swamped Watford 4-1 with goals from Gary Shaw, Tony Morley, Colin Gibson and Gordon Cowans. Luther Blissett scored a late consolation goal for the visitors with a penalty.

Sheffield Wednesday always were in command at Cambridge, where the home club had reached the fifth round for the first time. Gary Megson scored a goal in each half, while Cambridge replied late through Chris Turner. Two other fifth round games finished as draws and both will be replayed on Monday, Feb. 28.

Malcolm Allison's Second Division Middlesbrough rallied to draw 1-1 at home to Arsenal, who had led through Graham Rix. Dutchman Heine Otto was the Middlesbrough marksman. Crystal Palace and Burnley drew 0-0 in the all-Second Division clash at Selhurst Park. The remaining fifth round contest, between Liverpool and Brighton, was scheduled to be played Sunday.

Justin Fashanu's second-half goal gave Notts County a 1-0 win over Manchester City at Maine Road in one of only three First Division games played Saturday. Southampton handed Sunderland their first defeat in nine matches by winning 2-0 at the Dell with goals from Nick Holmes and Mick Mills, while Nottingham Forest and West Bromwich drew 0-0.

Meanwhile, youth international Paul Ferris, a striker with English Second Division side Newcastle, was named in a squad of 16 by Northern Ireland soccer manager Billy Bingham for a three-day training session next week. It is part of Bingham's preparations for next month's European Championship Group Six qualifying match against Turkey.

Arsenal goalkeeper Pat Jennings, Manchester United striker Norman Whiteside, Southampton defender Chris Nicholl and Norwich midfielder Martin O'Neil, all regulars in the Irish side, were not available because of club commitments.

In Madrid, French World Cup player Jean-Francois Larios has signed for Atletico Madrideno, a Spanish Second Division team linked with Atletico Madrid. Jose Martin, a director of the Atletico organization announced.

Larios, who bought his way out of troubled Saint Etienne last month, is contracted to the wealthy Spanish outfit for three seasons and the remainder of the current season.

Martin said the French midfielder could not turn out for the First Division side because they already had the two foreign players they were allowed, Hugo Sanchez of Mexico and the West German Otto Votava.

"But things could change next season, when the rules may allow a third foreigner," Martin said. "In that case Larios would automatically move up into the first team."

Connors recovers from the jaws of defeat

MEMPHIS, Tennessee, Feb. 19 (AP) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors fought back several times to hold off Eliot Teltscher 4-6, 6-1, 7-6 Friday night and advance into the semifinals of the $315,000 U.S. National Indoor Tennis Championships.

The victory sends Connors against fifth-seeded Peter McNamara of Australia, who vanquished No. 4 Yannick Noah of France 6-3, 3-6, 7-6 in their quarterfinal battle. The other semifinal pits No. 10 Brian Gottfried, a 7-6, 6-3 winner over Australian Paul McNamee, against No. 3 Gene Mayer, who ousted No. 11 Brian Teacher 6-4, 6-2.

Teltscher, who was playing only his second tournament after a three-month vacation, was serving for the match in the 10th game of the third set. But Connors, the defending Wimbledon and U.S. Open champion, raised the level of his game a notch higher and ran a step faster.

Connors five-time champion of this oldest indoor tournament in the world, rallied from 0-15 to 40-15 in the ninth game of the third set before breaking Teltscher to draw level at 5-5. Connors saved a break point, held his serve and then Teltscher held his serve at love to push the decision into the tiebreaker. Teltscher led 4-2 and 5-4 before Connors closed out the match.

McNamara kept Noah on the run, testing the knee that the Frenchman hurt earlier in the week. The knee was okay, but Noah, seemingly always off balance or on the wrong foot, couldn't keep up with his Australian opponent. Gottfried captured the first set tiebreaker 9-7, then broke McNamee in the eighth game of the second set to advance.

McNamee was the last unseeded player left. Meanwhile, Chileans Ricardo Acuna and Jaime Fillol, Peruvian Pablo Arraya and Paraguayan Victor Pecci advanced Friday to the semifinals of the $88,000 Grand Prix Tennis Tournament in Vina Del Mar.

Acuna beat Chilean Hans Gildemeister 6-0, 5-7, 7-5; Arraya beat Frenchman Louis Courteau 6-3, 6-1; Pecci beat West German Dami Keretic 6-0, 0-6, 6-3; and Fillol beat Bolivian Mario Martinez 6-3, 6-1. In the semifinals, Acuna will face Arraya and Pecci will play against Fillol.

In Chicago, No. 2 Andrea Jaeger staved off a strong upset bid from unheralded West German Eva Pfaff to post a 6-4, 6-4 win Friday night and join two other seeds in the semifinals of the $150,000 Virginia Slims of Chicago Tournament.

Earlier in the day, No. 1 Martina Navratilova outdueled pesky Marcella Mesker 6-2, 6-2, and fourth-seeded Pam Shriver recovered from a disastrous first-set tiebreaker with 11 aces to score a 6-7 (0-7), 6-1, 6-1 victory over No. 7 Bettina Bunge. In the last quarter-final match Friday night, No. 3 Tracy Austin ousted fifth-seeded Wendy Turnbull of Australia 7-6, 7-6.

Jaeger broke at love in the opening game of the match for the only advantage she needed to capture the first set.

Skeletons in cupboard rattle AFA

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 19 (AP) — The Argentine Football Federation (AFA) is investigating a report of an incentive payment during the 1974 World Cup in West Germany that could lead to the suspension of eight players for up to five years, an AFA source said Friday.

Mario Kempes, who currently plays for Valencia in Spain, and Ubaldo Xillol, goalkeeper for Buenos Aires' River Plate club, are among those threatened with suspension. Former Argentine national team full-back Enrique Wolff said this week that he and his companions on the squad that played in West Germany paid the Polish team $25,000 as incentive to defeat Italy in the tournament's first round.

Poland was already qualified for the second round and was planning to use reserves against Italy, Wolff said. If the Italians had won the game, they instead of the Argentines would have qualified for the second round. Poland used its regulars and won 2-1, allowing Argentina to make the second phase.

Wolff said the Argentine players contributed the money from their own pockets and that the coaches and team officials knew nothing of the payment. An AFA source, who asked not to be identified, said if the allegation proves to be true, "all the rigor of the regulation" will be applied. AFA regulations provide for between one and five years suspension for the payment of such incentives.

Kempes ... faces suspension

Ruben Garia, a member of the 1974 team who is now retired from football, told reporters, "Now it is not a matter of denying what Wolff said, but I never would have revealed it."

Francisco Sa, another 1974 team member, commented, "Wolff has not only compromised the Argentine team with his declarations, but the Polish players, who live under communism. What he is denouncing happened a long time ago, and there is no reason to bring it up now."

Other players from the 1974 team, still active and threatened with sanctions are Miguel Brindisi, Daniel Carnevali, Carlos Squeo, Carlos Babington, Ruben Ayala and Rene Houseman. Wolff retired from football in 1981 and owns a clothing store in suburb Buenos Aires.

Ireland beats back battling France

DUBLIN, Feb. 19 (AFP) — Ireland are now halfway toward the Five Nations Rugby Union Grand Slam following Saturday's tough 22-16 win over the previously unbeaten France at Lansdowne Road here.

And in a match to avoid the wooden spoon, Wales defeated Scotland 19-15 at Edinburgh. The Welshmen had taken a 15-6 lead by the interval with a try from Staff Jones, converted by Mark Wyatt, and penalties from Wyatt in the 14th, 32nd and 39th minutes.

Scotland's first-half points came from two penalties by Peter Dods. Dods kicked another penalty in the second session, but Elgan Rees extended Wales' lead to 19-9 with their second try. Jim Renwick's try, converted by Dods narrowed the gap.

The Irish was in their typical marauding style, but it took them until eight minutes from time to run in the winning try after France had hit back from a 3-15 half-time deficit to lead 16-15. They eventually triumphed by two tries from winger Moss

Finn, one conversion and four penalties, all from the prolific Ollie Campbell to two tries by Serge Blanco and Patrick Esteve, one conversion and two penalties from Blanco.

The difference in the end then, as is so often the case with Ireland, boiled down to the quality of the place kicking where Campbell holds sway. Before a packed house, the Five Nations champions immediately took the game by the scruff of the neck and were 6-0 up inside 12 minutes, two Campbell penalties doing the damage.

Exciting French full back Serge Blanco reduced the leeway after 19 minutes with a well struck penalty from around 35 meters, but the Irish looked the more dangerous.

Campbell slapped over another penalty after 27 mins and six minutes later the Irish broke clear with a magnificent try. The Irish pack switched left and then right before releasing the three quarters and Moss Finn had the space and time to dive in under Blanco for his second try of the season.

Campbell converted and to make the half-time score 15-3.

Immediately into the second half, Blanco turned on the style as he almost single-handedly changed the course of the game. First, he whacked over a penalty from near the halfway line and then after 55 minutes he engineered a try from nothing, picking up a loose ball, chipping over the Irish cover and winning the chase to touch down. He then converted to make the score a tight 15-12.

Twelve minutes later, the French were ahead when a long kick ahead caught the Irish flat-footed and Patrick Esteve dived in for his fourth try of the season. Blanco missed the conversion, but the French were ahead 16-15.

The French scored victory, but their joy lasted only five minutes before Ireland struck the killer blow. Full back Hugo Macneill was the instigator, intercepting and kicking on under the French posts.

Stanley puts up masterly show

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. 19 (AP) — Australian Ian Stanley was left with a slim one-stroke lead after a remarkable third round in the $100,000 Australian Masters Golf Tournament Saturday.

Stanley, on 216 shot an even par 73 for a one-shot break over countryman Jack Newton with Spain's Seve Ballesteros one shot further back one under the card. Newton has shot 75, 71, 71. Stanley began the third round three under the card after shooting 74-69 and methodically carved his way to a four-shot lead, reaching a peak at the tenth where he was eight under the card.

And Ballesteros climbed to six-under-par before frittering away his advantage as he tore tee shot after tee shot into the trees. The overnight leader Greg Norman also wasted shots through the back nine and was lucky to finish square with the card. Stanley scraped home for a level-par 73 for a three round total of 216.

Quietly poised at level with the card and only three shots off the lead going into Sunday's final round is young West German star Bernhard Langer. Langer had a share of third spot after a birdie at the 17th but dropped a shot at the final hole to finish with a two-under-par 71.

Meanwhile, Tom Kite, convicted his golf game has never been better, swiped off nine birdies for a seven-under-par 65 to take a three-stroke lead in Friday's second round of the $300,000 Isuzu-Andy Williams San Diego Open in La Jolla.

"I feel like I'm swinging as well as I ever have in my life," said Kite, whose 11-under 133 total was one shy of the tournament's 36-hole record set last year by Johnny Miller, the eventual winner. Ben Crenshaw, winless since 1980, was tied for second with John Cook and Gary Hallberg at 136.

Four strokes back, tied with a half dozen others, was Dr. Gil Morgan, whose 66 put him in position to challenge for his third victory of the year. He won the first two events of 1983, the Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open and the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open.

Kite, with a chance to win his second consecutive tournament for the first time in his 11-year career, took the easier Torrey Pines north course 32-33.

Tom Watson, Barry Jaeckel and Jim Boonies were among a group at 138, five strokes off the pace. Miller was six back, among a log jam of 139s. Chaffee's 75 put him eight strokes behind at 141. Seventy-three golfers made the cut of 144.

In Manila, Lu Hsi Chuen of Taiwan fired a five-under-par 67 Saturday to take a two-stroke lead in the $150,000 Philippine Open Golf Championship with a 54-hole score of 207.

Phil Mahre, McKinney emerge tops

COOPER MOUNTAIN, Colorado, Feb. 19 (AFP) — World Cup stars Phil Mahre and Tamara McKinney predictably and easily won the slalom titles in the United States Alpine Skiing Championships here Friday.

Mahre, who was surprisingly edged to second place in the downhill by Gale "Tiger" Shaw Thursday, romped to the men's title by winning both races. His aggregate time of 1:28.30 was almost four seconds faster than second-placed Felix McGrath. Mahre's twin brother Steve was forced to abandon the competition.

In the women's event, McKinney also won both races and with an aggregate time of 1:17.83 was more than a second clear of second-placed Heidi Bowes.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union continued their dominance of the Cross Country Skiing events in the World Winter University Games when they filled the top four places in the women's 10 km race in Sofia.

Moser, Pijnen win Milan Cycle race

MILAN, Feb. 19 (AFP) — Francesco Moser of Italy and Rene Pijnen of the Netherlands won the 23rd Milan six days cycling event here late on Friday night.

Until six hours before the end of the race, Urs Freuler of Switzerland and Maurizio Bidonost of Italy, still held on to the lead, but Moser and Pijnen won the 300 laps, 75 km "giant American" stage and with it the overall event.

Meanwhile, Gilbert Glaus of Switzerland won the prologue in Monaco of the Mediterranean Tour Cycling Race, a 1.6 kms time trial, in 2:03.4. Belgium's Jean-Luc Vandenberghe was second, 1.5 seconds slower, and Leo Van Vliet of the Netherlands third, 2.6 seconds off the pace. Bernard Hinault of France also took part.

BRIEFS

MOSCOW (AFP) — The Soviet Union's Vladimir Shemetov broke the men's 200m backstroke European record with a time of 2 mins. 00.65 secs in the Soviet International Swimming Championships. He beat the previous record of 2 mins 00.80 secs, set by Hungary's Sandor Wladar in September 1981.

NEW YORK (AFP) — Peruvian lightweight Orlando Romero, ranked No. 1 challenger by the World Boxing Association, has signed a contract with American promoter Bob Arum to fight for the world crown, the winner of WBA titleholder Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini — Ken Bogner bout.

LONDON (AP) — Fighting adverse weather and currents, British rower Peter Bird celebrated his 36th birthday in mid-ocean Saturday as he bid to become the first person ever to row across the Pacific.

HELSINKI (AFP) — The Soviet Union and reigning world champions Sweden will meet in Sunday's final here of the World Championship Tournament in Bandy, a sport similar to ice hockey.

Kings prick Lakers' bubble

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (AP) — What goes up must come down. The Los Angeles Lakers did that in a 24-hour span. After their emotional 127-110 victory over Dallas Thursday night, they hit the skids in Kansas City Friday and were beaten 124-118 by the Kings.

"You should be able to play back-to-back if you're a championship team, and we didn't do that," said Pat Riley, coach of the National Basketball Association's defending champs. "Sometimes the hustle equals the talent and I think that's what happened tonight."

In other NBA games Friday night, it was Philadelphia 127, Houston 98, Portland 101, Utah 97, Seattle 115, Washington 112 and Milwaukee 121, Indiana 94.

Ray Williams scored 25 points and Eddie Johnson 20 for the Kings, who won for only the sixth time in their last 21 to put their record at 26-26, one-half game ahead of Dallas and five behind first-placed San Antonio in the Midwest Division.

Jamaal Wilkes had 26 points and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar 23 for the Lakers, still eight games ahead of second-place Portland in the Pacific Division.

76ers 127, Rockets 98: Moses Malone's 26 points and 13 rebounds helped Philadelphia rally to beat Houston and hand the Rockets their 43rd loss, the most in the league. The 76ers, 51-2 games ahead of runners up Boston in the Atlantic Division, have won five in a row. Allen Leavell had 18 points and Wally Walker 15 for Houston, which led until the closing minutes of the first half.

Trail Blazers 101, Jazz 97: Jim Paxson scored 32 points, nine in the final five minutes, as the Blazers handed Utah its 10th loss in 11 games. Kenny Carr added 16 points and Lafayette had 15 for Portland. John Drew led the Jazz with 27 points and 7-foot-4 rookie center Mark Eaton had 16 points and blocked 13 shots.

Supersonics 115, Bullets 112: Washington chopped the Sonics' lead from 20 points, to three in the final nine minutes, but with 21 seconds to play, Ricky Sobers of the Bullets charged onto forward Lonnie Shelton and Seattle ran out the clock.

Bucks 121, Pacers 94: Indiana trimmed Milwaukee's 16-point lead to 41-35 midway in the second period, then four consecutive turnovers helped the Bucks to pump in nine successive points for a 50-35 margin that enabled them to cruise to victory. Marques Johnson had 20 points and Junior Bridgeman 16 for Milwaukee. Billy Knight and Russ Stogdole scored 14 apiece for the Pacers.

A 'capital' victory

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (AP) — Milan Novy completed a Washington comeback in the third period by scoring at 18:18 to give the Capitals a 2-1 victory Friday night over the Vancouver Canucks in a penalty-filled National Hockey League game.

Novy, a 31-year-old former Czechoslovakian national team star in his first NHL season, scored on the second rebound after Vancouver goalie John Garrett had kicked out shots by Dennis Maruk and Bengt Gustafsson.

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 19 (AP) — Evelyn Ashford, America's premier female sprinter, lowered her own world record in the 50-yard dash to 5.74 seconds in the Michelob Invitational Track Meet at the San Diego Sports Arena Friday night.

In the featured event, Ireland's Eamonn Coghlan ran the fastest indoor mile (1.6 km) of the year with a 3:53.1, beating chief rival Steve Scott. Billy Olson cleared 18-6 (566.88 cm) in the pole vault but narrowly missed a world record at 19 3/4 (601.98 cm) on the second of three tries.

Coghlan, who set the world record of 3:50.6 two years ago when he last faced Scott, burst past the American record holder at the outset of the last lap and won by a commanding margin. Scott was timed at 3:54.5 and Todd Harbor was third at 3:57.0.

"Deep down all I wanted to do was win the race," said Coghlan. "I've had a lot of misfortunes in the last three weeks and I just badly needed to win a race. I won against the No. 1 miler in the world."

Coghlan was referring to the recent death of his father during a visit to the United States. It was the first outing for Coghlan since his father died.

Ashford, whose world record in the 60-yard dash here a year ago was disallowed after several weeks of controversy, outdueled Alice Brown, who was clocked in 5.79, the third-fastest indoor time ever recorded in the event. Jennifer Innis was third in 5.88 seconds.

Ashford's previous world mark was 5.77 in the 50. She is the current world record holder in the 60-yard dash at 6.54. Brown, as is her custom, led the pack out of the blocks, but Ashford exploded near the 40-yard mark to overtake her rival.

"I didn't think my start was that great, but it was not that bad either," said Ashford, adding that she was surprised at the performance because one of her legs has been bothering her.

Doog Padilla broke his own 2-mile American record with a clocking of 8:16.5. His old mark was 8:16.8. In the same race he was credited with cracking the American 3,000 meters mark with a time of 7:44.9. That bettered the previous mark of 7:45.2 set by Steve Scott in 1980.

Carl Lewis, who in the past year had the fastest 100 meter run and the best indoor long jump, set a meet record in the long jump with two leaps of 27-9 1/2 (8.47 meters). That effort was 3 1/2 (8.89 cm) inches shy of the world indoor mark of 28-1 (8.5598 meters) he set last year in Houston. Lewis, 21, said timing at the board was off "and that's keeping me from the big, big jump."

Turner turns the screw on England

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Feb. 19 (AP) — Master opening batsman Glenn Turner scored a brilliant 88 as New Zealand romped to a six-wicket win over England in a One-Day Cricket International at Eden Park here Saturday.

In reply to England's 184 for nine off 50 overs, New Zealand cruised to 187 for four with more than three overs to spare in the first of three matches. Playing his first home international in six years, Turner carved out the match's top score in majestic fashion to earn himself the man of the match award in front of the 40,000-strong capacity crowd.

With Bruce Edgar, who returned to the side in the absence of an ill John Wright, Turner hoisted New Zealand's 50 in 43 minutes and reached his personal half century in 71. Turner concentrated his shots forward and square of the wickets, scoring frequently with drives and hooks. New Zealand reached 100 in only 79 minutes as the two openers made sure of a New Zealand victory in their first home international of the 1982-83 season.

The partnership ended one run later when Edgar was brilliantly caught by Robin Jackman backward of square leg off the bowling of Geoff Miller for 35.

Big-hitting allrounder Lance Cairns, promoted in the batting order, crashed two enormous sixes off Geoff Miller. His brief stay at the crease ended with the total 129 when he was caught by Allan Lamb on the long-on boundary off Ian Botham's bowling for 19.

Jeff Crowe then joined Turner in a 35-run stand for the third-wicket, which ended when Crowe was adjudged leg before to Botham for 15. Turner went shortly after at 166, when caught in the deep by substitute fieldman Norman Cowans off English captain Bob Willis' bowling.

Jeremy Coney and New Zealand skipper Geoff Howarth safely took the home side through to victory. Batting first after winning the toss, England struggled to find both their tempo and timing on a slow wicket with an inconsistent bounce.

Left-handed David Gower was by far the most impressive, smashing a cavalier 84 to provide the backbone of the innings. While his teammates' wickets fell, attempting shots which the pace and bounce of the wickets did not allow, Gower began an almost single-handed chase for runs.

He was eventually eighth man out with the score 168, when he got a top edge off a ball from Martin Snedden and was caught at square leg. Apart from the reliable Derek Randall (30) and off-spin specialist Vic Marks (23 not out) the England batsmen failed miserably.

Both captains later praised the batting of Turner and Gower. "Glenn is a class player," Howarth said of Turner. "He's been unavailable for New Zealand teams for some time for one reason or another but today I think he showed New Zealanders what they've missed."

English women's Windies tour off

LONDON, Feb. 19 (AFP) — A four-week tour of the West Indies by the England women's cricket team has been called off because five of the party have toured in South Africa.

The English Women's Cricket Association was told by the Caribbean Women's Federation Friday that the tour, due to start next Tuesday, could not go ahead as the five were unacceptable because of their South African involvement, said England manager Pam Crain.

The tour, sponsored by Bahamas-based businessman "Union" Jack Hayward, has apparently collapsed because of the objection of the Jamaican Women's Cricket Federation, which refused permission for its players to take part in the three-Test series.

The cancellation recalls the problems the England men's team ran into on their 1981 tour of the West Indies, when they were expelled from Guyana because of the presence in the side of Robin Jackman, who had also played in South Africa.

The 15-member party was due to play three Test matches in Granada, Jamaica, and Trinidad and compete in a triangular series with Jamaica and Trinidad for the Jack Hayward One-Day International Series.

Dujon cracks stylish 104

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Feb. 19 (AFP) — Jeffrey Dujon, Jamaica's stylish captain and right-handed batsman, gave the touring Indian cricket team a taste of what they can expect in the forthcoming Test series against the West Indies here Friday.

Dujon, who is a certainty as wicketkeeper and middle order batsman in the West Indies team for the first Test starting next Wednesday, scored a polished 104 as his team reached 299 for eight wickets in their first innings. This put the Jamaicans 103 runs ahead of the disappointing Indian first innings total of 185 when play ended 35 minutes early due to poor light.

Jamaica were 79 for one when play began and, thanks to Dujon and left-hander George Powell, who powered his way to a hard-hitting 75, appeared set for a huge total at tea when they were 245 for four. But the second new ball brought success for India after the interval as Mohinder Amarnath, the medium pacer, took two wickets including that of Dujon whom he bowled, while Indian captain Kapil Dev also took two.

So far, Kapil Dev has taken three for 57 and Amarnath three for 21 in the Indian attack, which was weakened when leg spinner Sivaramkrishnan was injured during fielding practice before play began and did not take the field all day.

Meanwhile, the Sri Lankan cricket tour of New Zealand started with a severe blow for the visitors in Christchurch when star batsman Duleep Mendis broke a finger. The 30-year-old Sri Lankan captain was struck on the index finger of his right hand from the first ball he faced at the start of the three-day match against Canterbury.

An X-ray revealed a fractured top joint and it is probable that Mendis will take no further part in a tour which includes two five-day Tests. The ball which broke Mendis' finger was bowled by Dayle Hadlee.

U.S. move to drain out export subsidies

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP) — President Ronald Reagan's administration will seek a new kind of agreement for governments that grant loans to encourage sale of their goods abroad, William H. Draper III, president of the government's Export-Import Bank, said Friday.

The Reagan administration takes the position that subsidies should be eliminated from international trade to the greatest extent possible.

In the past, governments have given subsidies in the form of lower interest rates than could be obtained on commercial markets. Draper said his bank has played a role in "squeezing the subsidy out of export financing." Rates it offers are now close to those of long-term bonds, he added.

"This is a tremendous victory," he went on, "not just for the United States, but for all concerned with removing artificial barriers to the free flow of trade worldwide."

"Our strategy is to reach an agreement to adopt a system that would allow rates to fluctuate with each country's market rates," Draper said. "From our perspective, this is a

Turkey fixes gold rates for 1983

ANKARA, Feb. 19 (R) — Turkey announced official buying and selling rate for gold, fixed for the whole of 1983, apparently in an attempt to curb the booming domestic market in the metal.

But the prices, applicable inside Turkey, were still some 40 percent below those being quoted this week by local dealers.

The announcement in the government gazette established an official buying price of $11.23 per gram ($348.52 per ounce) and a selling price of $12.07 per gram ($374.59 per ounce).

In Istanbul on Thursday, dealers were buying at $19.22 gram ($596.57 per ounce) and selling at $19.32 per gram ($599.79 per ounce) for Turks trading gold coins and jewelry.

The gazette announcement ended a system of daily central bank fixing prices that failed to stem the rush to gold. Established only last November in line with international market rates, the bank's fixings were ignored by dealers and public alike and local prices continued to climb.

The price rise has been fuelled by falling public confidence in the crisis-prone domestic banking sector, the falling value of the Turkish lira and a shortage of government-issued gold coins.

The government gazette said the new fixed rate was based on average prices in the London gold market during 1982.

Tanker rates remain dull in Gulf area

LONDON, Feb. 19 (AFP) — More activity developed on the tanker market this week, with fixing out of Kharg Island by the Japanese a particular feature despite the lack of news regarding crude oil price reductions.

But, in view of the number of supertankers (VLCC's/ULCC's) sitting in the Gulf area — some 45 at the last count — there is little chance of any improvement in rates, shipbrokers said. The only region showing some improvement in rates was the Caribbeans, where there was some good business.

In the Gulf area, Japanese charters were fixing the large VLCC's (200,000 tons and over) out of Kharg and down to Oman, where the crude oil was transhipped into Japanese vessels for the onward journey.

Japanese crews are still refusing to go into the danger zone around Kharg. Other fixtures reported from this Iranian oil terminal included South Korean fixtures, northern Europe, and Spain. Observers said that refining could be taking place in Spain, since there was also a "clean" fixture from Casillon to Iran.

Indonesia and West Africa sprang back into life after several weeks of idleness.

Japan, Russia to up fishing ties

TOKYO, Feb. 19 (AFP) — The Soviet Union hopes to boost cooperation with Japan throughout the fisheries industry, visiting Soviet Fisheries Minister Vladimir Kamentsev said in an interview published Saturday.

Kamentsev's visit, the first by a Soviet minister since the 1979 Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, signals a desire to tackle outstanding bilateral issues in a pragmatic manner, diplomatic observers said here, stressing that the significance of the visit went far beyond fisheries questions.

In an interview with the Kyodo News Agency, Kamentsev said the current provisional fisheries agreement between the two countries would be converted into a longer-term pact, thus stabilizing bilateral cooperation as soon as the U.N. law of the sea convention had taken effect.

Stressing that Soviet-Japanese relations in the fisheries field had developed steadily, the Soviet minister said that Moscow hoped to step up cooperation with Japan on a mutually beneficial basis.

His remarks were taken by diplomatic observers here as indicative of the Kremlin's general stance toward Japan at a time when Soviet-Japanese relations have grown chillier following Moscow's intervention in Afghanistan.

A major topic of talks between the Soviet minister and his Japanese counterpart Iwano Kaneko was a Tokyo proposal to extend a bilateral agreement on fishing rights within the 200-mile economic zones of the two nations with the world's largest fisheries.

"The Japanese proposal was not new," Kamentsev said. "The only reason for maintaining the current provisional agreement (reached in 1977) is that work on the third law of the sea has not been completed."

Observers said Kamentsev, who arrived here Wednesday for a week-long visit, is to have only two rounds of talks with Kaneko, the two met Thursday and a second meeting is scheduled for Monday.

The Soviet minister, however, conferred with Japanese Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe Friday and is to meet many other Japanese officials, possibly including Premier Yasuhiro Nakasone.

Talks with Abe touched on a wide range of bilateral issues, including the territorial dispute, which is seen by Tokyo as the main obstacle to harmonious relations with Moscow.

Nakasone has repeatedly stated that good relations based on mutual trust between the two countries hinge on a resolution of the issue. The dispute also has ramifications for fishing rights.

Japan and the Soviet Union are respectively the world's first and second fishing nations with a haul of 11 and 9.4 million tons in 1980. They have carried out countless seizures of each other's fishing vessels for violations of territorial waters, and incidents involving Japanese trawlers around the disputed islands are particularly frequent.

Wall Street

Stock mart takes economic upturn in stride

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (AP) — Some of the brightest United States economic news in a long, long time has lately drawn a sluggish response at best from the stock market.

Measures of the pulse of the U.S. economy are turning so positive that most Wall Street analysts are speaking of recovery not as a prediction, but a fact.

In the past few days, the government has reported: A 35.9 percent jump in housing starts in January to the highest annual rate since September 1979.

A rise of 0.9 percent last month in industrial production after an almost uninterrupted decline in this key economic statistic since the summer of 1981. A slight increase in the rate of factory employment last month from a record low in December.

And although the tempo of business is quickening, inflation so far remains at bay. Producer prices of finished goods, in fact, fell a record 1 percent in January.

"The near-term prospect for continued producer-price disinflation is excellent," said Edward Yardeni, economist at Prudential-Bache Securities. "We still think that the decline in inflation is a structural phenomenon, not just a cyclical one."

With this array of upbeat news spread out before it, however, the stock market has shown no great exuberance.

True, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials and most other leading market indicators have touched record highs this month. But investors have displayed nothing like the euphoria they seemed to feel last summer and fall. It has been more than a month since the New York Stock Exchange had a 100 million-share trading day.

In the past week, the Dow Jones industrials managed a 6.47 gain to 1,092.82. The NYSE's composite index rose .26 to 85.44, and the American Stock Exchange market value index was up 6.47 at 383.99. Big Board Volume averaged 79.23 million shares a day, against 85.47 million the week before.

The market's recent behavior testifies to the fact that investors are much more concerned with future prospects than with current events. As many analysts see it, the market did its celebrating over the present stirrings of recovery months ago, before the improvement became common knowledge.

Thus, if investors are going to bid stock prices still higher, they will apparently have to start anticipating some further pleasant surprises in the future that they don't sense at the moment.

That was roughly the message a few days ago from John Templeton, a widely-respected money manager, at the annual meeting of the mutual funds over which he presides. The bull market could have as much as three more years to run, he said. But in the nearer term, he added, a "correction" in which the Dow Jones industrials fall 100 points or more is a likely possibility.

As John W. Schulz at the investment management firm of BMI capital pointed out in a recent commentary, there are plenty of fundamental worries confronting the markets. "What about the budget? Monetary policy? Recession and recovery? The 'Debt bomb'? Inflation? Crude oil? questions, and reasons for asking them, any one of which can curdle the investor's toes."

For answers, Schulz suggested, one can weigh the conflicting opinions of all the experts, and still remain confused. "But," he said, "You can also look to the stock market, the broadest and most accurate opinion poll of them all."

Against that the stock market, having stared at all these questions for months, seems to say is that the underlying problems are so complex that they simply must, and therefore will, be coped with.

American exports to India decline

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP) — U.S. exports to India dropped last year but those to Pakistan reached a record, the Commerce Department reported Friday.

World recession and the rise in the value of the dollar were blamed for the situation with India where only $1.6 billion worth of U.S. goods were sold, compared with $1.7 billion in 1981. U.S. imports from India rose to $1.4 billion.

The drop in exports came despite liberalization of India's trade policies and an article in the department's magazine, Business America, called it disappointing.

It said the best prospects for future U.S. sales are in raw materials and in high technology items that will help develop India's infrastructure and export industry.

The increase of U.S. exports to Pakistan by 43 percent to $700 million was helped by the growth in the Pakistani economy, a liberalization of import rules, better access of Pakistani business to international credit and the resumption of U.S. economic and military aid.

Good prospects for the sale of U.S. goods and services were seen for the coming year as the Pakistani economy continues to grow.

The article said the best prospects for U.S. sales include farming and food processing equipment, chemicals, pharmaceuticals, railroad equipment and material to explore for oil and gas.

Peking enjoys shipbuilding boom

PEKING, Feb. 19 (AFP) — Despite the world recession, the Chinese shipbuilding industry is doing well and the order books have never been so full.

The newspaper China Daily said Friday that, in terms of value, the shipbuilding industry had increased orders last year, whereas most yards in other countries experienced reduced activity due to the economic recession.

The paper did not say how big the increase was, simply noting that output by value was 10 percent above the national plan target.

It said that China built 10 ships in 1982 totaling 216,800 tons, and three drilling platforms for foreign customers. It added that contracts were concluded at the close of last year for the construction of 20 vessels.

With the aim of boosting exports, the Bank of China recently announced that foreign customers could have credit facilities covering up to 80 percent of the purchase price, with interest at some nine percent.

The successes by China's shipyards stem largely from their competitive prices, the high quality of the ships and fast delivery times. Prices are 15 percent under those asked by Japanese yards, for example, and 10 percent below South Korea's.

Orders from abroad began rolling in during 1980, and the four main shipbuilding centers in China — Dalian and Tianjin in the north east, Shanghai in the east and Canton in the south east have subsequently provided one million tons of vessels.

A leading Hong Kong shipowner, Yue

Kong Pao, said a few months ago that China's shipbuilding industry was "gaining international recognition."

Feng Zhu, the director of the China State Shipbuilding Corporation, said recently that between now and 1985 China intended to build three million tons worth of vessels, of which 900,000 tons would be for export. China's own needs have increased as a result of augmented trade with other countries.

Air Canada to lay off 15% of staff

MONTREAL, Feb. 19 (AP) — Air Canada, faced with predictions of reduced air traffic because of the current recession, announced Friday it is reducing administrative personnel by 15 percent and shuffling its senior management to cut expenses. In all, 500 jobs will be pared from the current management staff of 3,600.

The government-owned airline had already negotiated work-sharing and other cost-saving agreements with three of its four major unions, and is laying off more than 500 ground-service workers, members of a union which didn't reach such an agreement.

The management shuffle leaves Claude Taylor in the top job of president and chief executive officer, but reduces the number of vice-presidents to 24 from 31, effective March 1. The functions of two executive vice-presidents will be taken by one, Pierre Jeanmou, with the other, John McGill, retiring.

Oil prices poised for a tumble

LONDON, Feb. 19 (R) — World crude oil prices looked set on a downward trend Saturday, prompted by Britain's proposal to cut its North Sea price and a reported Nigerian decision to match the reduction.

A British National Oil Corporation (BNOC) recommendation of a $3 cut to $30.50 a barrel put heavy pressure on other major oil producers to trim their rates. As anticipated, Norway swiftly matched the BNOC move and like Britain back-dated its cut to Feb. 1.

But an unexpected shock for traders came in industry reports from Lagos that Nigeria planned to cut its prices by up to $5 to bring them into line with new North Sea rates.

Spot-free market trading remained stagnant as traders sought to confirm and then assess the effects of Friday's fast-moving developments on the oil front.

Some analysts said confirmation of a sizeable Nigerian cut could provoke an uncontrolled price slide in the coming week as world producers followed suit in order to protect their share of an already depressed market.

Venezuelan Oil Minister Humberto Calderon Bert predicted, before the long-awaited BNOC proposal was confirmed, that a British price cut would be followed by other producers and could mark the start of a general price slide.

But he said his country would not drop its price. Venezuela would strictly follow OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) agreements.

In the Gulf, Kuwaiti Oil Minister Sheikh Ali Al-Khalifa Al-Sabah was quoted as saying two unnamed OPEC producers now planned to sell their oil at $30 a barrel, $4 cheaper than the current OPEC market price.

Industry sources in Mexico, the world's fourth biggest oil producer, which faces big economic problems, said it would have to follow Britain and Norway in cutting oil prices.

Industry analysts said the $3 cut in prices for North Sea light crude put particularly strong pressure on Mexico, not an OPEC member, to cut the price of its Isthmus crude, comparable in quality to OPEC's $34 benchmark.

Britain and Mexico compete in the United States light oil market and industry sources said U.S. refiners would "switch at the drop of a hat" from Mexican crude to anything cheaper.

A series of producer cuts could renew pressure on BNOC, Britain's state trading company, to cut its official price even further. There was already some dissatisfaction among major oil companies Friday that the proposed BNOC cut had not been larger.

His answer, Mexico: Which he expects to recover from its present economic troubles, Brazil, Thailand, Indonesia and perhaps some North African and Middle Eastern countries.

But he predicted that growth rates — including the increase in the amounts people have available to pay for food — will be slower in the 1980s than in the 1970s, though they can be expected to pick up somewhat in the second half of the decade.

Growth rates will be slower in Western Europe, too, he said. He noted that in 1981 the European Community — comprising the 10 countries of the Common Market — became a net exporter of grain for the first time, and said this was largely because of the community's policy of subsidizing production.

So, he argued, the Europeans will depend on exports to dispose of growing stocks. "Can they afford to continue the high subsidies?" he asked.

Dunmore saw the Soviet Union coming close to self-sufficiency in wheat in the later 1980s, but still dependent on the United States for grain to feed animals as Soviet leaders try to satisfy their citizens' appetite for meat.

TOKYO (AFP) — Japanese makers of video tape recorders will fix the quotas of their exports to the European Economic Community soon, the head of Japan's Electronic Industries Association, Tadashi Sekino, has said. Sekino, who is also president of Nippon Electric, told newsmen that the quotas would be set on a company-by-company basis after the forthcoming meeting of the EEC council of ministers in Brussels.

LONDON (AFP) — India and Turkey are soon to raise loans on the international capital markets, banking sources here said. India is to raise $400 million over eight years for its Oil and Natural Gas Corporation. Turkey, which for several years has not had access to the markets because it was in arrears with repayment of debts, is seeking at least $200 million over seven years to strengthen its monetary reserves.

PEKING (R) — China Saturday rejected Vietnamese charges that it was violating its sovereignty by allowing foreign companies to search for offshore oil in the disputed Beibu Gulf. The official New China News Agency warned Vietnam that if it obstructed the search for oil, it "should bear the responsibility for the consequences arising therefrom."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP) — United States food surpluses will increase in the 1980s but the food situation will grow worse in some African and Latin American countries where population has been expanding faster than farm production, says a top U.S. Agriculture Department analyst.

The result, said John C. Dunmore, will be that more and more people in those poor countries will depend on food imports.

"I don't see how they can turn around," he said. "They have a lot to do to get back to where they were 10 years ago."

He did not name the countries, but Angola, Ghana, Mozambique, Uganda, Mexico, Honduras, Nicaragua and Jamaica are among those where the number of citizens has been increasing faster than food production.

Dunmore is chief of the world analysis branch of the department's economic research service. He spoke Friday to the National Economists' Club.

He said world food output has nearly doubled in 30 years, and international trade in food has increased five times. He foresaw production continuing to grow, if less rapidly, while trade grows even faster.

Dunmore said his office has been trying to predict which poor countries are likely to improve their overall economic situation most in the rest of the century.

Cruzeiro devalued by 23 percent

BRASILIA, Feb. 19 (R) — Brazil, battling to keep up payments on its massive foreign debt, devalued the cruzeiro by 23 percent against the U.S. dollar.

Brazil's central bank announced the new rate as 380.50 cruzeiros to the dollar compared with 292.50 previously.

The country's last major devaluation was in December 1979 when the cruzeiro was also devalued by 23 percent.

Since then the central bank had been following a policy of small devaluations of between one and three percent at intervals of every 10 days to two weeks.

The announcement came as Brazil's economic leaders were still trying to put together a multibillion dollar loan package with the world's commercial banks to keep up payments on its foreign debt, estimated unofficially at around $89 billion and the largest in the developing world.

Late last year the government agreed to speed up the rate of devaluation of the cruzeiro as a condition for a three-year emergency loan of about $4.9 billion from the International Monetary Fund (IMF).

LIBYA, Feb. 19 (R) — Libya, faced with falling revenue from oil, is slashing development spending and taking a wide range of austerity measures, according to budget details released by the official Libyan news agency JANA Friday.

Libya's income from oil exports has been declining because it cannot sell its high-priced crude in the current oil glut. Its production is believed to have fallen below one million barrels per day compared to 1.8 million at the end of last year.

The General People's Congress, a form of parliament, approved a development budget for 1983 of 2.37 billion dinars ($8 billion), down about nine percent on last year.

WARSAW, Feb. 19 (AP) — Representatives of Western banks met last week with top Polish financial officials to discuss repayment and possible rescheduling of Poland's $25 billion debt to the West.

Officials from the Bank of American International, the Bank International de Paris, and Dresdner Bank of West Germany met Thursday with Kazimierz Glazewski, the new president of Poland's Bank Handlowy, which handles 90 percent of the nation's foreign debt repayment, banking sources said.

The Western bankers consulted Friday with Glazewski and Polish Foreign Trade Minister Stanislaw Niekarcz, the official Polish news agency reported Saturday.

Dollar closes on mixed note

By J.H. Hammond

JEDDAH, Feb. 19 — The dollar closed relatively mixed on the Friday night New York markets. The release of the latest U.S. weekly money supply figures showing a rise of $2.8 billion in the M1 series did not affect the markets since the rise was smaller than expected compared to the previous week's $5.9 rise.

Still, with the money markets now debating whether the Federal Reserve Board is about to adopt a new change of direction concerning its monetary policy, the continual rises in the U.S. money supply figures is helping to keep Eurodollar rates stable.

In the bullion markets, gold and silver prices closed on a mixed note with gold losing around $3 - $4 an ounce to close at $505 levels. Dealers were generally optimistic that prices will remain above the $500 an ounce barrier and they noted that there was less speculative trading over the weekend. Silver prices were generally depressed and closed at the $14.55 an ounce after it had reached the $14.75 an ounce high during mid-week. After a period of relative steady rises, silver prices are once again showing some volatility.

The New York markets saw the American currency close slightly higher against some of the leading currencies. The German mark, however, was bolstered by expectations of a Conservative March election in Germany and it closed at 2.3950 levels in New York after it had touched the 2.4200 levels again during midweek.

The British pound was stable at 1.5455 levels despite the news that the British National Oil Company had decided to reduce the price of North Sea oil by $3 a barrel to $30.5 a barrel. The market had already discounted the sterling to a lower level of North Sea oil pricing and dealers expect the British currency to probably open stronger on the European markets Monday.

The French franc was slightly stronger at 6.7500 level, while the Swiss franc was slightly easier at 1.9980 levels. The yen fell back by 100 points to 233.80 levels but some Japanese central bank support earlier in Tokyo on Friday helped steady the yen.

In the local markets Saturday, the rial deposit rates were generally easier at around ¼ percent levels compared to Thursday closing levels with the one-week rate at 7 - 7 ½ percent and the one-month JIBOR at 7 ¼ - 7 ½ percent levels.

The longer-dated funds were easier at 8 ½ - 9 percent for the one-year but dealers were still reporting some liquidity injections into the system which kept rial rates down. On the exchanges, spot rial/dollar rates averaged around 3.4393-98 down from Thursday's 3.4400-05 level.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (AP) — President Ronald Reagan, saying Caribbean nations are facing severe economic and political problems, asked Congress on Friday to approve his plan of tax and trade benefits for those countries.

The portion of Reagan's so-called Caribbean Basin Plan that gave $350 million in aid to those countries was passed by Congress last year, but the tax and trade incentives portion was never voted on in the Senate.

In resubmitting the legislation Friday, Reagan said in a written message to Congress:

"Our neighbors are struggling to keep up with the rapidly changing global economic system, while striving to develop or nurture representative and responsive institutions."

"These tasks would be burden enough for any nation, but they are also being forced to defend themselves against attempts by externally supported minorities to impose an alien, hostile and unworkable system upon them by force," he said.

"These challenges must be faced four-square. The alternative is further expansion of political violence from the extreme left and the extreme right, leading inevitably to further economic decline and more human suffering and dislocation."

Reagan also said the nations were burdened by deteriorating trade opportunities, mounting debts, and growing unemployment.

Watermen refuse to call off strike

LONDON, Feb. 19 (AP) — Union leaders of Britain's 29,000 striking water and sewerage workers rejected a request Friday to call off their 25-day-old strike during the investigation of the dispute by an independent committee of inquiry.

Chairman Tom Johnston, professor at Heriot-Watt University, Edinburgh, made the request at the start of the three-man panel's first hearing. He said the three-man panel still planned to present its findings Sunday, raising hopes that strikers could resume work by the middle of next week.

During Friday's talks, he said, both the National Water Council and the water unions agreed not to release statements of evidence to the press to assure complete privacy of the hearings.

Indian trade team visits Pakistan

KARACHI, Feb. 19 (AP) — A 26-member trade delegation of the Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industry (FICCI) arrived here Friday from Bombay on a week-long official visit to Pakistan.

Led by the vice-president of FICCI A.K. Jain, the Indian businessmen will hold talks with Pakistani counterparts and explore possibilities of expanding trade in the private sector between India and Pakistan, the delegation sources said.

Technology assessment aids world peace

By Hajima Ito and Yujiro Ishida

MANILA (Depnews) — Technology assessment is an evaluation technique which can optimize the products of research and development. It has been used thus far largely to meet the self-serving ambitions of technological industry.

In Japan, technology assessment (TA) is handled mainly by suppliers of new products. First, it is seen from the point of view of suppliers of new products already at the stage of market distribution. At this stage the aim is to assess the public's acceptability of a prototype or finished product.

Second, TA is seen from the point of view of technology system planners at the corporate or national level. This includes the assessment or review of existing technology. Ideally it compares existing with forthcoming technologies (for examples, agricultural chemicals and high-rise apartment buildings).

TA can also be from the point of view possibly of consumers. In reality, however, TA of this kind does not exist in Japan probably because of lack of sufficient technical knowledge on the part of the public. A fourth point of view would probably be that of scientists and engineers themselves.

As a matter of topical fact, TA interest in Japan shifted to problems of energy and other natural resources due to the oil crisis of 1973-74, reflecting industry's concern. Food and public health problems, on the other hand, have drawn little TA interest in spite of their urgency. Uneasiness of the TA effort is attributable to the imbalance in the availability of funds between industry and welfare.

We can readily perceive that the objects of TA interest do not necessarily reflect the public's interest, accentuating the freedom and even autonomy with which science and technology continue to operate. Technology planning (or policy) has not developed hand in hand with science (or research policy).

As a result, technological evolution in recent years has been confined to a kind of assembly of existing specialized knowledge (to wit, the Apollo project in the United States). If both technical and scientific evolution are purposely combined, the total technology system will be very different from the existing one. For example, Japanese technology experienced drastic conversion from military objectives to civil orientation, beginning in 1945. Today, Japan's technology faces another profound transformation from industry-for-consumption to an industry oriented toward human and environmental needs.

A major problem is how to define a detailed goal of technological change. Many targets for technological projects have been chosen using the criterion of technical effectiveness — to ensure further evolution within a given technological field. Projects were designed to sustain technology.

It is not engineers but politicians, economists and other leaders of public opinion who are responsible for this closed circuit: they have failed to recognize the social significance of technology, excluding technological elements from socio-economic planning. But the goals of scientific and technical development can be defined with the public's participation.

Today people are sufficiently well educated for this.

An expected barrier is that, in the academic community, there will undoubtedly be resistance to public participation — even if the area of planned science is but a small part of the whole spectrum of scientific activity. But in Japan, the openness of science and technology to the man in the street is already a fact in the fields of nuclear physics and system engineering. These initiatives may make possible, eventually, the total openness of science and technology. The participation of engineers in policy-making will stimulate politicians to take a more active interest in science and technology.

Another source of technology modification is the transfer of knowledge from highly industrialized to less developed areas. One of technology's major deficiencies lies in the imbalance of its development because of biased social preference. As this preference changes or diversifies, an economical means of response by science and technology is technology transfer.

Japan succeeded in transferring technological prowess from the military to the civil sectors between 1945 and 1950. The country's potential in electronics continued to shift from military experience to the needs of general industry during the 1950s and 1960s. Today, electronic technology is moving increasingly into the fields of medical electronics and educational technology.

Now that technology affects the whole world, TA must take into account the impact of technology on developing countries. The monopoly of technology by a few developed countries could result in serious conflicts. The monopoly of colonies and their resources was a major cause of the two world wars.

Now that technology (derivative of the human brain) is an important resource, the struggle between nations having and not having this resource could become the major source of a future international conflict.

A number of countries have been making significant efforts to transfer technology to developing countries, but the results rarely have been successful. The major difficulty is to be found in the cultural differences attached to different technology systems. On the one hand, technology is universal. On the other it is deeply related to historical background and cultural development. As a consequence, technology developed in one venue can seldom be shifted to another. This condition emphasizes the serious need for new and appropriate technology, suitable to the needs of development.

The same argument applies to imbalance in applied information between urban and rural areas. Today's urbanization is a kind of applied information (or know-how) and much technical research and development sprouts in the urban setting. But the technology developed in cities and towns to help solve rural problems (like medical electronics systems) is not necessarily suited to implementation in rural districts.

Needless to add, technology developed to solve largely urban problems (computer-controlled personal transit) is not necessarily applicable to the needs of the countryside.

HOW TO BE A GOOD VISITOR?

By Peter J. Steincrohn M.D., F.A.C.P.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Never having been sick, I never paid much attention to the visitor problem. But being the victim of friends who almost killed me with kindness, I now realize that well-meaning visitors can sometimes prevent normal convalescence. I had a serious intestinal operation with complications. This sapped my energy. But what increased my fatigue was prolonged visits from well-meaning visitors. They stayed too long, talked too much and expected me to be a genial host on days when I felt sick enough to die. I've spoken to several of my recently sick friends about it, and they too complained that too much visiting kept down their recovery. I confess it's quite lonely during illness, but when the room is filled with constant chattering, you pray for being alone again. Didn't you have a column on visiting some years ago, Dr. Steincrohn? If you have it handy, I think many ill persons would be extremely thankful if you wrote about visiting again. — Mr. Y.

Dear Mr. Y: I don't have the column handy. However, here are some important, similar suggestions on how to be a good visitor:

- 1) When visiting the patient in the hospital, respect the NO VISITORS sign. Don't barge in past the nurse with excuses.
- 2) If you are allowed to visit, don't stay too long. Ten to fifteen minutes should be adequate. Don't say, "I must be leaving," then remain for hours. Leave on schedule.
- 3) Don't smoke, even if the kindly patient says it's okay. Think of how much willpower it has taken for him to forego cigarettes. Smoke is as tempting to him as a bone to a puppy — even though it's interfering with his breathing.
- 4) Be cheerful. Don't discuss the terrible foreign situation and the imminent possibility of nuclear war.
- 5) Don't downgrade the patient's doctor by a lifted eyebrow or other subtle methods. Anything that lowers the slowly improving patient's confidence is detrimental to recovery.
- 6) Be optimistic. Talk with the patient about his plans after he leaves the hospital. This makes him feel he is still a part of the living community.

Follow these suggestions and you will have learned the basic rules on how to be a good visitor.

For Mr. W: I can only guess at the latest treatment for an attack of coronary disease. Perhaps you've been referring to the use of "streptokinase" enzyme as an infusion into a blocked artery after onset of the heart attack. It dissolves the blood clot and reduces damage to the heart. It is still under clinical investigation.

Family budgets get upset

Price spiral makes life difficult for Asian families

By Paul Iannina

MANILA (Depthnews) — A Sri Lankan family finds a television set a necessity for their daughter's knowledge of English, which is a must for a good job. Even if the TV set is bought on loan.

"All I want is a cinema ticket for me and my wife once a month, enough rice and wheat, some cooking oil and milk for my child," says a slum-dweller in New Delhi.

Mrs. Rinawati in Jakarta is satisfied with her thriftness and birth control, while Sainju of Kathmandu never imagined a drought will double rice prices this year. "It has never happened in my life," he says.

Everywhere in Asia, inflation has never meant a double-figure statistic on an upward-curving table. It has always meant the gut-wrenching realities of everyday life — a little less meat on the table, a child's education postponed for a year, the good things in life for which money always seems barely enough.

Depthnews has taken quick glimpses on what the economists have always gloated upon but never ate. The following reports indicate how Asian families are coping — or are trying to cope — with these hard times:

"I promised to buy a bike for my son last year when its price was 800 rupees ($55). I could not keep it because the price has now gone up to 1,200 rupees ($80)," Sunder Sainju told Depthnews correspondent Aditya Man Shrestha in Nepal.

It has led to family tension and Sainju's college-going lad finds it a ready-made pretext to defy his parents. Mrs. Sainju blames her husband for promising what he was not sure of fulfilling. But Sainju defends himself by forwarding well planned saving scheme for financing the bike.

What went wrong? Sainju says: "I had planned to save the money from my overtime work at my office, which I actually did. But the saving could not be saved for the bike because the rice price went up so much that the extra money I had made had to be spent in the rice procurement. How could I imagine that there would be drought this year and the price of rice would double within a year? It has never happened in my life."

What surprised Sainju did surprise many other people. "The wisest man is he who spends his money today," says a housewife, Mrs. Rijal. "When you go buy the same stuff tomorrow, it would cost more."

But like Sainju, people find it hard to buy now because there's no money to spare. A housewife in her late 20s, Mrs. Rijal is showing signs of fatigue. "I thought life would be fun when I got married 10 years ago. But now there is fun in watching the children making fun. Now I don't live for myself. I live for my children," she says. "But to keep the children happy is also getting difficult. The school fees are going so high and the house rent is soaring."

Mrs. Rijal keeps mum when asked where she gets the extra money to make ends meet. "You know how people in the government make it. I don't need to tell you," she said, meaning corruption which has become routine only differing in degrees.

Still, Mrs. Rijal is optimistic her husband will be transferred to the customs office, or the tax office, or the excise duty office. If he gets it, they plan to build a small house next year on land they inherited from his parents.

From India, Prakash Chandra reports that television antennas are sprouting up in the slums of Delhi, Bombay and Calcutta. Here are where the stone-cutters brick-layers and skilled workers live. Ironically, they seem to enjoy their life a little more, and they have limited ambitions. They earn less than $3 a day, more often it is $2 or even $1 or 50 U.S. cents. They live in a shack, eat rice and pulses with potatoes and curry. They make do with a couple of shirts, trousers and saris.

Says Raghu Nath, a 30-year-old electrician: "All I want is a cinema ticket for me and my wife once a month, enough rice and wheat in the house, some cooking oil and milk for my child."

If given a better income, Raghu would also like to own a TV set. Slum-dwellers have the habit of sending their children, some below 15 years of age, to work as house cleaners or kitchen help. And sometimes the whole family can earn up to $100 a month, and have electric fans and TV sets, although refrigerators are considered unnecessary.

The middle-class also has to contend with status symbols like television and kitchen utensils. And like the Sharmas, a New Delhi family, they buy the electronic goods from loans. S.K. Sharma's advice: "Invest wisely. Put your money in the career of children and let them save money for the future. The past generation of joint families or extended ones is already over. Now each family has to fend for itself."

Sharma takes home a salary of $120 a month after paying taxes, his provident fund and other dues. His wife Sarla, 28, has to make do with rice, vegetable and pulses. Meat and chicken are out of the question. The two children live on clothes passed on by older cousins. "The problem is that," laments Sarla, "even giving the children a good breakfast of eggs, milk and cornflakes can be expensive and cut a considerable hole in our budget."

DELHI ROAD WORKER: Life in India can be hard. Many women work for long hours with little reward. Their earnings range between $2 and 50 U.S. cents. Human rights groups are putting pressure on the Indian government to improve the working conditions of unskilled labor and crack down on the exploitation and inhuman treatment of working women. Seen here is a road worker in Delhi. The picture tells its own story.

Just on the fringe of the middle class are people like Vijay Kumar, 45, an executive in a business firm who earns $500 a month. He has an office car, a furnishing allowance and a flat on which he pays $90 a month. He plans to send his son Satish, 20, to the United States for a better education to qualify as a manager or as a chartered accountant.

To people of Vijay Kumar's class, India has little future for their children. "I don't want my son to slog as I did in my early years. I want him to live well and marry when he wants to. I wonder if this country has a very bright future for the middle class," Kumar says. "Only politicians thrive with their black money and under-the-counter deals."

To people of Vijay Kumar's class, India has little future for their children. "I don't want my son to slog as I did in my early years. I want him to live well and marry when he wants to. I wonder if this country has a very bright future for the middle class," Kumar says. "Only politicians thrive with their black money and under-the-counter deals."

From Sri Lanka, Malika Wanigasundara writes on the plight of one family. The Middle East used to be a great help, a sister sending quite a bit of money to tide them over. But the bonanza ended last November when the sister went back to get married and never left the country again. Since then, the family, has been living from loan to loan. Kusuma, a typist, and her husband Amaraseena, a government clerk, both earn about 2,600 rupees ($145) a month. It is an income which 10 or 15 years ago would have placed them in the more affluent bracket. But inflation, quite beyond their expectations, has caught up.

Kusuma keeps "rolling" the family earnings to meet the food bill, educational expenses for their three daughters, and occasional medical bills. She takes the loans on her salary, leaving her husband to bring home his pay packet to run, the family. She has taken all manners of loans — provident fund loans, distress loans, salary advances — that more than three-quarters of her salary goes back to pay them. She even had to pawn her jewelry.

Then why — with all the loans — the refrigerator and television set also bought with a loan? She explains that the refrigerator is not a luxury but a necessity for working parents. They are keen to have a TV set because it will improve their daughter's knowledge of English so necessary for a good job. Besides, the TV is their only form of entertainment.

But there is a bright spot. They pay a very low assessed rent of 32 rupees ($2) per month and details are being worked out for them to buy the house on rent purchase. But already, Amaraseena is toying with the idea of moving to another part of Sri Lanka because it will bring more money.

Times are hard in Bangladesh, reports Alamgir Hossain, that Shafiq and his family had to move from their three-room flat to a two-room tin house. Shafiq cannot make both ends meet after paying the house rent and had to make his wife work to help the family out.

While Shafiq had a few promotions in the last decade, his standard of living has declined. Before he had two housemaids — one to cook, another to look after the babies. But now he cannot afford a single one, mainly because he had to feed the extra mouth also. But still he was forced to take one maid because both parents now work.

Everyday means which his family always had a few years back is now unthinkable. While before they never ate leftover rice or curry, now the rice of the previous night is fried for breakfast. Before, the clothes which children outgrew were given to the poor. Now they are handed down to younger children, or passed on to other relatives.

The children used to go to school by rickshaw, but the daily fare has become too expensive. Now they go by bus. Shafiq's 12-year-old son cannot remember having a big whole fish for meal. He buys fish when they are cheaper and dries them for the off-season when fish is scarce and expensive.

He says they have forgotten the meaning of entertainment. "The only entertainment we have is the TV, or we take the children to the park," he says. "Sometimes I want to entertain friends but the thought shivers me because we have often guests from our village whom we have to entertain. After that we have nothing left. Sometimes we even have to borrow money to entertain relatives."

"The natural gas has saved us," Shafiq sighs. "It is much cheaper than kerosene oil or wood which we used before for cooking. He also thinks he is lucky since all his three children are grown up and are going to school."

Meanwhile, Warief Djajanto has this report from Jakarta: The dilapidated wooden frame house — 8 by 4 meters — stands on a small alley in the low income Gang Kober area of east Jakarta. The house belongs to a relative.

A plastic dining table that doubles as an ironing board, no chairs, and two iron beds with mattresses make up the furniture in the single-room house. Kerosene lamps make do instead of electric lights. Water comes from a nearby well. Yet Mrs. Rinawati, 40, seems content living there with her blacksmith husband and three of her four children. Perhaps, her being a practitioner of family-planning makes Mrs. Rinawati feel untroubled.

She has four children. The first is a son, 21; the rest are girls age 19, 12 and 9. Mrs. Rinawati has been a consistent family planner for seven years, although she was afraid of it when she had two children. "Many people told me my husband won't be satisfied," she recalls.

But when child number four came along, she realized that that was the limit considering her husband's meagre earnings. Her first two children now work. The son lives separately and runs a small foodstore nearby where Mrs. Rinawati also helps out. Her first daughter works at a supermarket. The two youngest go to school.

Mrs. Rinawati is thrifty. She can turn her husband's daily earning of 1,000 rupiahs ($1.60) into something to feed her family.

Uganda tries to throw off embattled past

By Andrew Hill

KAMPALA (R) — The rough at the 14th hole of the Kampala golf course deserves more caution than usual — an unexploded grenade is thought to be in the bushes.

There is another danger, fully visible and of the rocket-propelled variety, at the 16th tee. "Its nose is buried in the ground and no-one will touch it," said a club member. Such reminders of Uganda's embattled past are everywhere, but life goes on and has returned to something like normality. The only thing that keeps devotees of golf from the capital's beautiful suburban course is the rain.

The city center still bears the scars of the war that ended Idi Amin's regime when a combined force of Ugandan exiles and Tanzanian troops chased him from the country in 1979. Rows of gutted shops, their roofs caved-in and metal infrastructure rusting at crazy angles, line the main streets. There are potholes big enough to park a car in.

But for a visitor returning after more than a year, Kampala today gives the impression of a city which is throwing off its past for a more prosperous and hopeful future.

Uganda is a very fertile country and food is abundant. What is remarkable today is the number of goods in the shops and busy markets which were unavailable not long ago. They include basic commodities such as sugar and soap. For the wealthy, there are two new supermarkets stocked with all sorts of imported food, and even video recorders. By day, Kampala bustles to a rhythm more common in the steamy capitals of West Africa than in the staid and Anglicized capitals of East Africa.

Two years ago, after President Milton Obote's government took office, only soldiers, criminals or innocents would walk the streets at night because of gunfights between security forces and suspected anti-government guerrillas. But shots are rarely heard these days. Most of the fighting is being waged in the countryside, diplomats said.

The improvement in the economy and security has paved the way for thriving business at a place known to all residents as "the cement." This is a row of 20 shops and business is brisk from five in the afternoon until late at night. Its name comes from a cement strip, "Kisemete" in the local language, which runs outside the shops and houses market stalls.

Here one can rub shoulders with civil servants, Asians who were kicked out by Idi Amin in 1972 and are now being invited to return by the government, senior soldiers and businessmen.

Skewers of beef, kidney, kababs and fish are offered to clients sitting on wooden forms by small boys wearing T-shirts bearing a government slogan: "Uganda, come together." "And this is one of the few places where Ugandans do come together. Every tribe has its own club here. Everyone comes and there is no trouble," said one Kampala resident.

Even so, about eight months ago, a member of the opposition Democratic Party was shot dead at one of the clubs by unknown gunmen, but it has not deterred business at "The Cement."

It is, however, a reminder of the continuing security problem Uganda faces. "The only place you can compare Uganda with accurately is Northern Ireland," a Western diplomat said. There are other reminders. Along the main street are rows of wooden "no-parking" signs placed there since guerrillas launched a series of car bomb attacks in July.

Goods cost so much — a box of tissues is 750 shillings — that a visitor needs to carry thick wads of money.

Ethnic balance tilts as English-speaking blacks leave Belize

By Bead Debusmann

BELIZE CITY, (R) — Belize is beginning to lose its identity as Central America's once predominantly black, English-speaking nation.

Its unique position is being threatened by an ethnic shift the leaders of this newly independent country view with almost as much concern as a long-standing claim to Belizean territory by neighboring Guatemala. "To put it in a nutshell, what's happening here is that English-speaking, relatively well-educated blacks are moving out and people of Indian or mixed descent are moving in. It is a demographic time bomb," said a Western diplomat.

Belize's ethnic mix has traditionally been made up by descendants of the Maya Indians, mestizos of mixed Indian and Spanish descent, and two black groups, the Garifuna and the Creole. Garifuna is a race that emerged when escaped slaves intermarried with the inhabitants of the eastern Caribbean, chiefly the islanders of St. Vincent. "Creole" is used here to denote descendants of the African slaves brought by British settlers. Creole has been the dominant culture in Belize for more than a century.

As a consequence, Belize turned its back on its Spanish-speaking neighbors. "For years, the only thing we had in common with Central America was geography," said a civil servant. "We just did not feel Central American, and many here still don't." Their feelings were reflected by a recent advertisement in the independent weekly newspaper Mandala Whiniki in bold, black print: "It's high time for African history to be taught in Belize schools."

But the cold realities of geography — Belize is wedged between Guatemala and Mexico, with a 280-km Caribbean coastline — can no longer be denied even by the staunchest defenders of their country's unusual heritage. Estimates of the number of Belizeans living outside the country range from 40,000 to 150,000. Since El Salvador's problems flared into civil war three years ago, between 5,000 and 7,000 Salvadorans have sought refuge here.

The figures are enormous for a country with a population of only 140,000, scattered over an area slightly larger than El Salvador which has 4.5 million people.

"Most of the emigrants are black," a government official said. "They have little problem fitting into the United States, where they enjoy a higher standard of living than we can offer." Britain, which granted Belize full independence in September 1981, left an education system which resulted in a literacy rate of more than 90 percent — higher than any other country in Central America. "That makes it relatively easy for Belizeans to find jobs abroad," the official added.

The government is so alarmed by the shift in the ethnic balance that it is considering accepting several thousand Haitians now living as illegal immigrants in the United States.

CAUTIONARY NOTICE IN SAUDI ARABIA

NOTICE is hereby given that HONEYWELL INC., a Corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, United States of America, of Honeywell Plaza, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55408, United States of America, are the sole Owners and exclusive Proprietors of the invention entitled:

"TANTALUM BONDING METHOD"

It is based upon the foreign application Serial No. 381,830 filed on 24th May 1982, in United States of America, in the name of Francis R. Varrese, of 258 Mt. Pleasant Avenue, Ambler, Montgomery County, Pennsylvania 19002, U.S.A., engineer and U.S. citizen.

Abstract of the Invention: A method of joining tantalum to a non-refractory material includes the steps of bonding a tantalum layer to a Kovar substrate by blazing in an inert atmosphere whereby Inconel as an intermediate fraze material is elevated to its liquidus temperature followed by a slow cooling of approximately 380/hr, to below its solidus temperature to minimize distortion of the bond there-between. The method is particularly useful in the manufacture of pressure transducers with tantalum diaphragms.

The said Owners claim all rights in respect of the above invention and will take all legal steps against any Person, Firm or Corporation infringing their rights in the said invention in SAUDI ARABIA.

CAUTIONARY NOTICE IN SAUDI ARABIA

NOTICE is hereby given that SNAMPROGETTI S.p.A., a company organized under law of the Italian Republic, of Corso Venezia 16-MILAN, Italy, are the sole Owners and exclusive Proprietors of the invention entitled:

"PROCESS FOR PRODUCING TERT. BUTYL ALKYL ETHERS IN THE PRESENCE OF BUTADIENE"

It is based upon the Italian Patent Application No. 20122A/82 filed on March 12, 1982 in the name of ASSORENLI

The Inventors are: Francesco ANCILLOTTI (Chemist of Italian nationality) residing at S. DONATO MILANESE (Milan-Italy Via Ferial 14/C; Ermanno PESCAROLLO (Chemist of Italian nationality residing in MILAN (Italy) Via Spezia 45.

Abstract of the Invention: In producing tert. butyl alkyl ethers starting from a hydrocarbon feedstock containing butadiene in addition to isobutene, the increase in the pressure drops through the etherification reactor due to the butadiene is eliminated by feeding the reactants from the bottom upwards.

The said Owners claim all rights in respect of the above invention and will take all legal steps against any Person, Firm or Corporation infringing their rights in the said invention in SAUDI ARABIA.

S. Africa, Angola to discuss Namibia

LISBON, Feb. 19 (AP) — The Marxist government of Angola has agreed to meet face-to-face for a second time with ministers of white-ruled South Africa to negotiate an independence settlement for Southwest Africa, or Namibia.

In a dispatch from the capital, Luanda, Saturday, the official Angolan news agency, Angop, said government officials had agreed for ministerial-level negotiating teams from the two enemy nations to meet and discuss security along their borders with Namibia and a United Nations resolution calling for Namibian independence. The report made no mention of a time or place for the meeting.

Angop's report was the first official acknowledgement from the government of President Jose Eduardo dos Santos that second round of talks is in preparation.

The first landmark meeting took place Dec. 7 on the Cape Verde Islands off the West African coast. In Cape Town, South African Foreign Minister P. W. Botha said Friday the fresh talks would also be held in Cape Verde some time next week.

Informed sources in Lisbon have marked the most probable dates for the negotiations as Feb. 25 and 26.

Black nationalists in Namibia have waged a 17-year guerrilla war to win independence from South Africa. South Africa's armed forces have launched persistent attacks into southern Angola in pursuit of the nationalists.

The Pretoria government, backed by the United States, has pressed for a simultaneous withdrawal of an estimated 30,000 Cuban troops stationed in Angola with its own pull-out from Namibia.

Philippines woos bishops

MANILA, Feb. 19 (AFP) — Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos Saturday publicly invited the Roman Catholic hierarchy for a "more vigorous dialogue."

A presidential palace spokesman said Marcos is asking the influential Catholic Bishops Conference of the Philippines (CBCP) led by Antonio Mabutas, to meet him and his cabinet "as soon as possible." The meeting would take up the prelates' "participation in the common effort to promote the socio-economic uplift of the people," a palace statement said. An eight-page CBCP pastoral, which forcefully states the bishops' stand on "conflicting issues that today threaten to ruin us as a people," will be read from pulpits Sunday.

It strongly criticizes the Marcos government for injustice, corruption, the "murder and torture" of dissidents, "suppression" of the press, the "militarization" of the country and other "aspects of the current political system that invite the dissent of the ordinary citizen" and push people to insurgency.

The unprecedented CBCP statement stresses "the need to dialogue for peace" as "today in the Philippines we live in deep conflicts, in the all too glaring absence of peace."

"The government has no quarrel whatsoever with the church except those elements involved with certain godless ideologies which pose a threat to the security of the state," the president was quoted by the palace statement as saying.

He was referring to militant priests and nuns, accused of joining or supporting the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) and its New People's Army (NPA), who are disowned by the bishops themselves in their pastoral.

Marcos has directed his entire cabinet to "draw up specific socio-economic programs which would incorporate the participation of all segments of society, including the church sectors and the laity," said the statement.

The president is asking the church to assist in such socio-economic programs as the promotion of small-and medium-scale industries, settlement of agrarian conflicts, resettlement of urban squatters, preventive medicine and nutrition, the statement added. In their pastoral, the bishops question certain "key developmental priorities" of the Marcos government and emphasize on tourist projects while the number of poor Filipinos grows daily.

The CBCP has yet to issue a response to Marcos' invitation.

Bushfires toll rises to 71

Australians act to prevent looting

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 19 (AP) — The discovery of another charred body Saturday brought to 71 the death toll in the bushfires which swept southeastern Australia since Wednesday.

This equaled the worst previous fire, the so-called Black Friday of 1939.

The body was found in the blackened Dandenong ranges near the town of Cockatoo which was wiped out by the fire storms. At least 29 persons are known to have died in the Cockatoo area.

As the grim hunt for more bodies went on, Victorian and South Australian police set up patrols to prevent looting of abandoned homes. Police were turning back sightseers who had been hampering relief operations.

"All major roads have been blocked and sightseers will be turned away," Chief Superintendent Ron Plant said.

Plant said investigations suggested that many of the fires may have been deliberately lit, a view also held by police in south Australia where a 19-year-old unemployed youth has been charged with setting fires in the Adelaide Hills.

Plant, who is investigating outbreaks in Victoria said "the reports indicate that a number of fires in the region were deliberately lit." He said the fires at Cockatoo, which claimed the lives of 12 firefighters were also the work of arsonists.

Two major fires were still burning in the Dandenong ranges 80 kilometers from Melbourne, but in south Australia firemen said they had all fires under control.

Firefighters at Warburton east of Melbourne had been reinforced by soldiers and were still battling to quell the blaze. A second fire at Buffalo River in the state's northeast was still burning fiercely, country fire authority officials said.

Victorian Police Minister Race Matthews warned that if the winds changed to the north there was potential danger for a repeat of Wednesday's destruction.

Saturday's mild weather with gentle southeasterly winds gave the state a respite from the 42 degrees Celsius (108 F) and 100-kilometers winds that fanned the fires on Wednesday.

Red Cross and other welfare agencies Saturday were caring for the homeless families, most of whom lost everything in the fires.

In Victoria, 5,000 persons have registered for aid out of an estimated 9,000 who were evacuated and about 1,000 persons were listed as homeless in south Australia.

The Victorian government has also issued an appeal to Australian farmers, already hard-pressed by the worst drought in history, to donate fodder for starving cattle.

The state agriculture department said there were an estimated 30,000 heads of cattle without fodder. More than 200,000 animals died in the fires.

Yuri Andropov emerges undisputed boss

MOSCOW, Feb. 19 (AFP) — It is only three months since Yuri Andropov came to power in one of the most apparently untroubled changes of leadership in Soviet history and already he has managed to establish himself as the undisputed new boss of the Kremlin.

Although he has not yet acquired the title of president, which his predecessor Leonid Brezhnev held in addition to the post of Communist Party secretary, Andropov has already given ample proof to his people and the outside world that he has the stature and influence to lead the Soviet Union.

Evidence of his authority was neatly summarized earlier this month, when in the space of 24 hours he expounded his strong-arm internal policies to workers at a Moscow factory and gave a decisive "no" to President Ronald Reagan's proposal for a summit between the two leaders.

Faithful to the policies of his predecessor — a firm stand in the East-West dialogue and a rejection of the U.S. zero option proposal on Euromissiles — it is more in the style of his leadership than in its content that Andropov has distinguished himself.

He has already sought to establish realism and efficiency as his hallmarks, in keeping with his style while heading the KGB, the Soviet secret police.

Thus, the new wind blowing in Soviet foreign policy has caught Western leaders by surprise, and left them somewhat shaken in the face of an avalanche of Soviet peace proposals and other apparent gestures of good will.

These included a proposed reduction of 25 percent in strategic arms and a decrease in the number of medium-range missiles deployed in Europe to 162 — equaling the combined number of such weapons held by France and Britain — along with proposals for a non-aggression pact and a nuclear-free zone in Northern Europe.

These overtures seem to have partly achieved their goal. In Europe, public opinion has become increasingly responsive to calls for disarmament. This year will be crucial for the future of disarmament in Europe. If the Geneva talks on medium-range weapons fail, Europe is only a few months away from the deployment of U.S. Pershing-2 and Cruise missiles.

Western experts agree that Soviet foreign policy has scored a valuable point in raising a debate in the West over U.S. arms policy.

If it has only taken Yuri Andropov three months to establish himself as an international figure to contend with, it has not taken any longer to make his presence felt at home.

He has stood by the promises he made on Nov. 22 when he gave his first speech to the Plenum of the Supreme Soviet.

Andropov's avowed No. 1 priority was to get the Soviet economy back on its feet. He is tackling the problem on three fronts — absenteeism, productivity and consumer spending.

He is not afraid to use force to persuade workers to toe the line. The machinery of repression and system of police surveillance are already in place. Work places are subject to tighter controls, sanctions imposed on "bad workers" and heavier penalties face "parasites," who risk ending up in labor camps. For the generation which remembers the brutal reign of Josef Stalin, these measures are uncomfortably familiar.

Nkomo freed after detention

HARARE, Feb. 19 (Agencies) — Opposition leader Joshua Nkomo was released Saturday evening after being held for several hours in Bulawayo, southwestern Zimbabwe. Nkomo told AFP on the telephone that he did not know why he had been detained by police.

Nkomo was prevented from leaving the country and detained by police in the Matabeleland provincial capital of Bulawayo Saturday morning, a government spokesman said here.

Aides to the Zimbabwe African Peoples' Union leader confirmed by telephone that Nkomo had been held while waiting for a South African Airways flight to take him from Bulawayo to Johannesburg and on to a conference of the World Peace Council in Czechoslovakia.

"He has not been seen since the police grabbed him," an aide, who requested anonymity, said in an interview with the Associated Press.

Nkomo, 63, was about to board the aircraft when police stopped him and drove him into Bulawayo.

"There is no peace in Matabeleland so how could he possibly attend a peace conference," the government spokesman said in Harare, the capital, 480 kilometers away. "And anyway there is incriminating evidence against him of involvement in a coup."

Nkomo's alleged role in a coup plot has been mentioned at a treason trial in the last two weeks involving two of his top security chiefs, Dumiso Dabengwa and Lookout Masuku, and other former guerrilla commanders.

Dabengwa, who was security chief, and Masuku, who was military commander, were detained almost a year ago for links to the alleged coup. They are on trial for their lives for treason.

Nkomo was fired from the coalition government Feb. 17 last year. Prime Minister Robert Mugabe said at the time that Nkomo and other ZAPU politicians and former guerrilla chiefs had cached massive arms boards on farms and other properties owned by the party to stage a coup, backed by South Africa.

Nkomo has denied any knowledge of a plot. Instead, he has insisted he was dismissed to pave the way for Mugabe's avowed aim of establishing a one-party dictatorship in the former British colony.

This is the first time that Nkomo has been physically detained by the authorities since his ouster. Mugabe has pledged that "the old lion," as Nkomo is known by his Matabele supporters, would be brought to trial if and when firm evidence was mustered against him.

13 Asians killed in American club

SEATTLE, Washington, Feb. 19 (AFP) — Thirteen persons, all of them apparently Asians, were killed Friday night in a private club in the Chinese section of this northwestern U.S. city, a police spokesman said.

Police discovered the bodies when they were called by a passer-by who had discovered a wounded man in the street. When they broke into the locked club, they discovered 12 bodies and a 13th man who died soon after in hospital.

Police gave few details but said gaming tables were found in the club. They said robbery may have been the motive.

Last December, in New York, three persons died and eight others were wounded in an alleged gangland battle between rival Chinese groups.

Army wins first round in Thai political war

BANGKOK, Feb. 19 (AFP) — Thai politicians Saturday virtually admitted defeat after the army won Friday's first round of a battle for political clout in parliament.

In what was widely seen as a personal victory for Army Chief Gen. Arthit Kamlang-Ek, parliament approved in principle constitutional amendments that will prolong military power in parliament and government affairs after the general elections.

The pro-military draft, which also calls for a reversal of the electoral voting system so that candidates may win on individual rather than party merit, sailed through its fast reading.

There was no immediate reaction from the government whether Nkomo was being held pending trial or detained under security regulations.

Cairo. He said they also used his taxi to drive people to the desert west of Cairo for weapons training.

Hassan claimed he became suspicious and contacted police, who asked him to play along and find out what the defendants were up to. The police even provided him with two submachine guns to give to the defendants, he said.

When he handed over the two submachine guns, Hassan said he asked what the weapons were to be used for. He claimed El-Maghrabi replied: "The first bullet will be aimed at the chest of Anwar Sadat." The two were arrested upon leaving his house on Sept. 20, 1981, Hassan said, about two weeks before Sadat's assassination during a military parade.

Saturday's session was the first since Jan. 5 when the chief judge adjourned the proceedings to allow defense lawyers time to study the nearly 20,000 pages of material in the case.

Judge Ahmed turned down defense requests for another postponement after lawyers claimed they had not been able to see all the material received.

and Mustang in Iran. He hoped Iran would respond positively to goodwill efforts that are being made to resolve the conflict, noting that Iraq had expressed its willingness to accept mediation.

The Middle East question will be discussed, he said, in light of the ongoing Palestine National Council conference in Algiers. He hoped the Palestinian representatives would assert the independence of their decisions in a manner reflecting the views of their people.

The GCC, he added, supported any plan that would bring Jordan and the Palestinians closer to each other. Referring to his prime minister's visit to the Kingdom last week, Sheikh Mubarak said it was in connection with economic developments in the region.

Foreign Minister Prince Saud Al Faisal was expected to submit a report about recent events, and the outcome of the Seven-Nation Committee formed by the Fez summit to make contacts with other governments about the Arab peace plan. The report will give details about the Kingdom's efforts to settle inter-Arab differences, especially those plaguing Iraqi-Syrian relations, Algerian attempts to put an end to the Gulf war and Saudi Arabian backing for them.
